BIG CASE; BIG BREAK

■ Carmel police go full tilt to battle counterfeit ring.

By JOHN DETRO

CARMEL POLICE Chief Don Fuselier has a team of special investigators on a round-the-clock regimen in an effort to snare a wandering gang and its bogus traveler's checks.

The chief's message: "It's a major case. The first break in it came right here in Carmel. Now we'll do what we have to do, and nail these people."

Two suspects were in custody Wednesday. They already face charges — and the investigators dug for more.

Officers from San Francisco to Carmel were working in concert, piecing together evidence against the alleged criminals — described by Fuselier as a smart, well-organized, wide-ranging ring from San Jose. "They've been passing counterfeit $100 Bank of America/Visa traveler's checks," he said. "About 50 so far on the Monterey Peninsula alone. In fact, they've been driving our merchants crazy."

Lt. Bill Uretsky of the Carmel department said 10 of the checks had been passed locally, 15 in Monterey, "six or seven in Pacific Grove" and up to a dozen in the county area overseen by the sheriff's office.

Like a jigsaw

"We can't afford to let up," Fuselier said. "Building a case like this takes legwork — it resembles a jigsaw puzzle. So far we know of six main players (in the ring), but there could be many more."

At a press conference Monday morning on the steps of Monterey City Hall, Managing Editor Doug Thompson details plans for The Pine Cone family's new newspaper — the Monterey Times.

The new weekly will debut Friday morning and be delivered free to 8,000 homes in the City of Monterey. A total of 6,000 more copies will be available in prominent locations throughout Monterey.

Joining Thompson at the press conference were Supervisor Sam Karas, Assemblyman Bruce McPherson, Monterey Mayor Dan Albert and Carmel Mayor Ken White.

McPherson, former publisher of the Santa Cruz Sentinel daily, told the audience, which included crews from three TV stations: 'If the Monterey Times matches what The Pine Cone has done, delivering in-depth news, the people of Monterey are going to enjoy their new newspaper.'

Herald workers poised to strike; management confident of accord

By JOHN DETRO

THE UNION side stands unanimously ready to strike if intense bargaining with The Monterey County Herald does not produce acceptable salary and pension levels.

But no deadline or walkout date was included in the strike vote taken Tuesday night at the Holiday Inn and addressed in detail Wednesday by negotiator Russ Cain of the Herald graphics desk and Newspaper Guild Local 98.

The other two unions are Graphic Arts Communications (pressmen) and Communications Workers of America (printers).

"All three unions voted," Cain reported. "All three votes were unanimous. That means we can strike if we think it's necessary. Negotiators for the unions sense that we're running out of time."

Management negotiator Tom Hooten, Herald director of human resources, said Wednesday that negotiations were "going at a slow pace but still making progress."

A decade in the making: Teachers call CUSD salaries 'competitive'

By PAUL WOLF

WHILE THE Carmel school board quickly approved raises of 2.7 percent for three employee groups, the real story has been slow in developing: Carmel teachers finally are receiving salaries comparable to those paid in other districts.

"It has taken some raises over several years to get to this point," said Patty Armstrong, a fourth-grade teacher at Tularcitos Elementary School and president of the Association of Carmel Teachers. "But the district has been responsive, and that is good news."

If union spokespersons tend not to be so quick to express their satisfaction, Armstrong's comment is significant. The Carmel Unified School District apparently has made enough of an effort over the past decade or so to put the "parity" issue, for teachers at least, on the back burner.

Patty Armstrong

"We were very far behind, about the lowest in the county," said CUSD President Pat Condren, noting that the district has chipped away at the problem over 13 years she has been on the board. "We're not any more."

Although she had no statistics to cite, CUSD Business Manager Judy Long confirmed the district is within the top third for salaries both in the county and among comparable districts in the state.

Jack Ellena, a high school history teacher and lead negotiator for the union, said, "We are pretty competitive now. This is something we've been working at for the past 10 years."

Three groups

At its meeting Feb. 8, the Carmel Unified School District board finalized two one-year contracts, which include across-by-the-board salary increases of 2.7 percent for three employee groups.

Besides teachers, those groups include librarians, counselors, nurses and administrators.

Negotiations, however, continue between the district and classified employees.

The salary hike applies retroactively to

At 99, Hildegarde Ferrera ready to take the leap

On Friday, former longtime Carmelite Hildegarde Ferrera turns 99 in style.

By PAUL WOLF

WHEN HILDEGARDE Ferrera turns 99 on Saturday, she will have a novel way to mark the day: Jumping out of an airplane.

"I am not in the least bit nervous," she asserted. "No, not one bit."

The former Carmel resident will make her first skydive at Dillingham Field in Hawaii, on the island of Oahu, where she has lived since 1992.

If the event goes off as planned, she will break the record for the oldest person to take such a leap with a partner. Ferrera has met her tandem skydiving companion, received some coaching from a professional, watched a video, bought the appropriate jumping apparel and is ready for action.

"I've never particularly been afraid of anything," she told The Pine Cone in a long-distan telephone conversion.

Ferrera made her home in Carmel for 37 years before moving off the mainland. She has always traveled extensively and never shied away from adventure.

Candidates debate in CV tonight

CVPOA forum features Henson, Davi, Potter

AS THE March 26 primary inches closer, here's a look at some upcoming political events of note taking place on the Peninsula:

■ Tonight: The three 5th District supervisorial candidates — Dave Potter, Zan Henson and Jeff Davi — will appear at a forum sponsored by the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association (CVPOA).

The event is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in the St. Phillips Church Community Hall, 8065 Carmel Valley Road, Carmel Valley. (The church is located across the street from All Saints' Episcopal Day School.)

The forum, open to the public, will focus on issues of concern to valley residents and property owners.

At tonight's meeting, the CVPOA also will install its new officers and board of directors.

■ Saturday: Candidates for congress, state senate and assembly will gather at 9 a.m. at Oldemeyer Center, 986 Hilby Ave., Seaside, for a three-hour forum moderated by the Monterey Peninsula Chapter of the League of Women Voters and presented by the American Association of Retired Persons.

More information: 626-1412.

■ Thursday, Feb. 22: The three 5th District supervisorial candidates will appear at a forum sponsored by the Carmel Highlands Association at 6 p.m. in the Surf Room of the Highlands Inn.

More information: 625-0260.

A glimpse into 'Vinegar Joe'

NANCY STILWELL Easterbrook, the daughter of Gen. Joseph "Vinegar Joe" Stilwell, will lend insight into early Carmel and her father in the second installment of the Henry Meade Williams Local History Lecture Series.

Easterbrook will give two lectures — 10:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. — on Monday, Feb. 26 at Harrison Memorial Library Park Branch, Sixth and Mission.

Seating is limited, so those interested in attending either lecture are encouraged to arrive early.

More information: 624-1615.

A 'Leep' in the dark?

YOU'VE heard it said that someone "marches to a different drummer"? Well, I believe I've found the drummer, himself!

He's Ed Leeper of Monterey, and to say that Ed is different is like saying the Pacific Ocean holds a fair amount of water. We're talking colossal understatements here!

ED is doing something at 2:30 p.m. this Saturday at the Pacific Grove Art Center that boggles the mind! He will read for 20 minutes from the July 10, 1994 Sunday New York Times (Eastern edition) classified ads on page 2, column 1, "Help Wanted, Accountants."

Yep, 20 minutes — after which, free refreshments will be served! There is no admission charge.

WHY is he doing this? Ed is in the process of reading every single word of that hefty 408-page newspaper in order to see exactly how many days, hours and minutes it will take him to get through the entire thing!

He keeps precise time records on his readings, has a tally work book showing how long it takes him to read each section, and a book for comments by visitors. (Yes, he's allowed visitors.)

SO far, in 162 readings it has taken Ed 129 hours (5 days, 9 hours) to get through approximately 85 percent of the newspaper.

You there, in the back of the room waving your hand so furiously, what is your question? You say you STILL want to know WHY he's doing this?

WELL, Ed has at least four reasons:

- "I consider it art."
- "Because it's fun."
- "Nobody else has done it."
- "Somebody has to do it."

(Remember that different drummer thing I mentioned at the top?)

UP to now, Ed has done all of the reading silently to himself (he doesn't even move his lips!), but he decided to go verbal for 20 minutes on Saturday to let the public take part in his history-making event!

A question-and-answer period will follow the reading. But what question could anyone possibly ask? Except maybe, "Ed, you awright?"

ANYWAY, good old Ed has kept The New York Times folks fully apprised (through letters) about what he's doing and how his project is coming along. But so far, they have not replied at all. I figure they probably have been rendered speechless by the grandeur of the whole thing!

(On the other hand, they may just be typical New Yorkers.)

REMEMBER the world-famed artist, Christo, who decorated a large section of Northern California with fabric? And who jazzed up the hills and meadows near Bakersfield with colorful umbrellas? And who recently completely wrapped the huge Reichstag building in Germany with fabric?

Why did HE do it? Well, he considered it art; he thought it was fun; nobody else had done it; and SOMEBODY had to do it! (By the way, Ed helped him plant some of those umbrellas!)

ED hopes to complete reading of the entire newspaper by late May. (The whole thing weighs NINE pounds.) "THEN what will you do with that tally book and the book of comments?" I asked.

"I'll put them up for sale like any other art work," he replied, "but I have no idea yet about what price I'll ask." (That IS a toughie.)

OK, so we jest a bit. But we'll be there with bells on Saturday for the reading at the PG Art Center, 598 Lighthouse! Wouldn't miss it for the world!

Hey, history is being made. It's something you can tell the grandkids you were actually there to watch!

It's not Iowa or New Hampshire, but local GOP congressional foes wage own war

By PAUL WOLF

WELL BEFORE the filing period for congressional candidates closed in late December, the sparks were already flying among Republicans hoping to unseat Rep. Sam Farr, D-Carmel.

For starters, dark-horse candidate Phillip Chavez issued a challenge to frontrunner Jess Brown urging Brown to join him in refusing political action committee (PAC) contributions and to limit individual contributions to $250.

"We need to be getting less money from more people in our campaigns," said Chavez. "I feel strongly enough about this that I am willing to put myself at a disadvantage."

But is a relative unknown putting himself at a disadvantage by turning down the big spenders?

On word of Chavez' challenge, Brown, a "moderate

Carmel Valley video store to give rental revenues from Simpson tape to YWCA

By PAUL WOLF

"IF YOU really want to know what happened, get the video."

That's how O.J. Simpson has been punctuating his surprise radio appearances lately. Speculation says the tape was developed to pay off his considerable legal bills.

One Carmel Valley video store owner said he is bucking O.J. by passing on rental revenue from the tape to Monterey's YWCA Crisis Center.

"Maybe something good can come out of this," said Tom Jensen, owner of Hacienda Video in Carmel Valley Village.

Moreover, Jensen intends to match each dollar of rental revenue with a dollar out of his own pocket.

Won't sell video

Jensen could not confirm a name or precise release date for the tape, or whether it would be available through his usual distributor or an "800" number. He does plan to buy a copy for rental purposes. He won't sell the video.

Reportedly, the video, to retail for $29.95, will detail Simpson's side of the Nicole Brown Simpson and Ronald Goldman murders and include a tour of Simpson's house and murder scene.

"As soon as this tape was announced, women's shelters started receiving checks for $29.95," Jenson said. "I know he was found not guilty, but I think it is so ludicrous he is putting this thing together as a defense."

The store owner predicted many people will be offended by the premise of the Simpson video, and those feelings will keep them from buying, not renting.

Sheriff's Log

NEIGHBORS CARE about neighbors and neighborhood safety. So here's a rundown on activity logged by Monterey County Sheriff's Department from Monday, Feb. 5, to Sunday, Feb. 11.

Note — Items from "Carmel" refer to the sheriff's jurisdiction; deputies do not handle calls within the city limits of Carmel-by-the-Sea.

MONDAY, FEB. 5

Pebble Beach: A woman reported losing her cellular phone in the area of a golf course's 10th fairway.

Pebble Beach: Firemen requested that an officer respond to a medical aid call. "A subject refused to be transported to Community Hospital after having a seizure. The officer spoke with the subject for a few minutes; she decided to go."

TUESDAY, FEB. 6

Carmel: Security advised of some furniture left outside of a store — two chairs, a picture, a gate. "No responsible party was found for contact. Items were too large to obtain for safekeeping."

Carmel: Citizens reported a "suspicious subject" in front of a shopping center. A man was found intoxicated and bothering customers.

Carmel: A woman reported that her landlord let her ex-boyfriend into her house, while she was gone, to drop off a TV. "She has told the landlord not to go into the house without her knowledge, and he has ignored her. She is not on the lease, will be moving and contacting an attorney."

Carmel Valley: "Report of a juvenile party. (Officer) found four juveniles in possession of alcohol and marijuana. They were intoxicated."

Pebble Beach: A man reported hearing footsteps on his upper balcony. "It is believed the cause was an unknown type of animal."

WEDNESDAY, FEB. 7

Carmel: A caregiver reported the theft of several potted plants from a back yard.

Carmel: A woman reported that "someone removed her wallet from her purse while she was shopping at a supermarket tonight."

Carmel Valley: Security reported a resort member's golf bag taken. "Estimated loss — $2,620." Another man said clubs stolen from him were worth $2,205.

THURSDAY, FEB. 8

Carmel: A woman reported her 12-year-old daughter's bicycle stolen out of the driveway some time between Sunday evening and yesterday. Dark metallic green; 18-speed and all-terrain.

Carmel: An administrator at the high school said a student had been drinking alcohol.

Carmel: One man reported that another struck him at an eatery in a shopping center. "Investigation showed that the situation was mutually aggravated; the reporting party decided he didn't want to pursue the complaint."

Carmel Valley: A woman reported los-

'Citizen's Academy' begins March 7; 35 to participate

IN PREPARATION for the third Monterey County Sheriff's "Citizen's Academy," which begins March 7 in Salinas, Sheriff Norm Hicks is looking for 35 good citizens.

The free classes will be held from 6 to 9 p.m. for 12 consecutive Thursdays and will cover such topics as Ethics in Law Enforcement, the Coroner's Division, Firearms, Community Involvement and SWAT and Tactical Operations.

The main purpose of the Citizen's Academy, according to Hicks, is to "de-mystify law enforcement and to share with the citizens of the county how the deputies and other specialists within the department do their jobs."

At the conclusion of the academy, graduates will receive a certificate and be invited to join the Citizen's Academy Alumni for future activities.

The deadline to submit applications is 5 p.m. Monday, Feb. 26.

For more information or to request an application packet, call Sgt. Bob Bryant at 755-3722 or Lt. Dave Allard at 755-3772.

City to get $200,000 windfall from state retirement system

By PAUL WOLF

THE STATE retirement system will return about $200,000 to the City of Carmel before the end of the 1995-96 fiscal year, according to the city's budget manager.

The surprise payment from the Public Employees Retirement System (PERS) will help the city replenish lagging reserves, fund public safety programs and pay for infrastructure repairs needed because of storm damage, said Financial Services Coordinator Sandi Davenport.

The details of how that money will be spent are yet to be decided.

The system, she said, invests the money it pools together from public employees throughout California, but it is limited in its ability to "reinvest" the earnings. Thus, the returns to cities.

Carmel's portion of the windfall won't be paid all at once but in installments, she said.

A PERS "refund" was not anticipated when the Carmel City Council approved the 1995-96 budget last summer.

The council will consider City Administrator Jere Kersnar's recommendations for how to spend the refund money when it meets at 2:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 22, to make mid-year adjustments to its 1995-96 fiscal year budget.

According to Davenport, the council will receive a mid-year budget report indicating that city revenues are on target.

"There are no huge surprises in store," Davenport said, referring to the staff's status report on the $7.9 million budget. "I expect routine, minor adjustments."

But she admitted one can never say where controversy may erupt. Citizens will be encouraged to approach the microphone and help the five-person council make its fiscal decisions.

The meeting will be held in the council chambers in City Hall, at Monte Verde between Ocean and Seventh.

After a period of city employee cutbacks and belt-tightening, the current budget is largely a status quo package. It assumes modest growth attributed to a slight rebound in the local tourist trade.

New to the budget this year is a provision for minimum spending on capital improvements (roads, buildings, facilities) — at roughly $300,000. Also, the budget includes a $100,000 grant to the Carmel Business Association for increased visitor promotion efforts, funded indirectly via a higher room tax rate.

Davenport confirmed that room, sales and property taxes and other revenue sources have been "overall on budget as projected."

Kersnar, who will make recommendations to the council, was out of town and unavailable for comment.

Davenport said the specific revenue figures would not be made available until Thursday's meeting.

San Jose, was being held in county jail. Juvenile hall had the 16-year-old San Jose resident who was arrested with Trinh last Saturday at Carmel Plaza.

When passing the bogus traveler's checks, Fuselier said, group members buy small items at chain stores. These they later try to return — for full dollar value — at different stores in the same chains. This attempt was made at Saks Fifth Avenue in Carmel.

Because the ersatz checks had victimized local shops previously, the merchants had been alerted by police using Carmel Business Association bulletins. And when the suspects entered Saks Fifth Avenue with the purchases from some other Saks, store personnel suspected there could be a connection to the check-passers. Police were summoned.

"The Saks people," Fuselier said, "stalled the other two long enough for us to get there and do what we had to do. We got the first break, and we're making a commitment. Every one of us will keep going until we have the charges we need."

Today, Uretsky said, each suspect faces arraignment on two counts of burglary, possession of stolen property and possessing and passing counterfeit checks.

While working, Fuselier said, the group members dress well and usually travel in man/woman pairs. "I'm told that the checks are pretty good work — you need an actual one to look at so you can spot what's wrong with the fakes."

July 1, the start of the 1995-96 fiscal year.

According to Armstrong, the arrival of a new superintendent — with Joe Jaconette replacing Vance Baldwin in July 1995 — caused the agreement's tardiness.

"We started (talks) last spring, but we were delayed because of the change in personnel," she said. "It took us only a few meetings to reach an agreement."

Board member Gary Gray agreed with Armstrong's assessment, saying, "We have certainly made progress toward parity over the nine years I have been on the board. I was very concerned about parity, but now our salaries are comparable."

To Condren's knowledge, there has never been a formalized goal of achieving parity. Usually, she said, the issue has been addressed under its euphemistic heading — "morale."

"I don't think we have a big problem with morale anymore," she said.

Pine Inn's Gunner prevails in jury decision with Marriott Corp.

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

A SUPERIOR court jury awarded Richard Gunner, owner of the Pine Inn, $698,000 in a breach-of-contract case with the Marriott Corp.

The jury ruled unanimously that Gunner incurred losses during a one-year stretch up to June 1994, a period in which Marriott ran the hotel's restaurant.

Gunner argued Marriott created labor problems by laying off longtime workers at the restaurant and stirred a walkout and picketing. Marriott had contended the loss of business stemmed from the inn's disruptive remodel of the lobby.

Superior Court Judge Robert O'Farrell agreed to study Marriott arguments in support of a post-verdict judgment.

CSUMB gets green light on hiring new police officer

CALIFORNIA STATE University at Monterey Bay will soon be able to hire a new community police officer, due to a federal award provided under the 1994 crime bill.

The grant is being awarded on a matching basis, with the federal government providing 75 percent of total funding. The university will receive $75,000 to hire one new community police officer.

To date, the government has made awards amounting to more than $3.5 million to Central Coast cities, counties and police departments for the hiring of new community police officers.

CRA to name 'Citizen of Year' at event on Sunday

THE CARMEL Residents Association will announce its Citizen of the Year for 1995 on Sunday at a celebration starting at 3 p.m. at the Scout House, at Mission Street and Eighth.

Eligible for the award are residents of Carmel proper and its sphere of influence.

Recent winners include Roy Thomas, 1994; Clayton Anderson, 1993; and Skip Lloyd and Noel Mapstead, 1992.

Restaurants contributing hors d'ouevres for the event include The Avenue, Cafe Berlin, Bully III, Caffe Napoli, Cherche, Il Fornaio, the General Store, Jack London's, Jason's, La Playa Hotel, A Little Pizza Heaven, Little Swiss Cafe, The Red Lion, A.W. Shucks and Stravaganza Cafe. Other contributors include Bruno's Market, Carmel Plaza Cheese Shop and Mediterranean Market.

The public is invited to attend.

Big Sur issues focus of Feb. 22 meeting

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

A BRAIN storming session to find a solution to traffic congestion along Sycamore Canyon Road in Big Sur will convene next Thursday at the Big Sur River Inn.

The public is invited to join Rep. Sam Farr, D-Carmel, Monterey County Supervisor Sam Karas, U.S. Forest Service officials and members of the Big Sur Multi Agency Council at 8:30 a.m. to discuss ways to reduce traffic on the one-lane drive from Highway 1 to Pfeiffer Beach.

In October, the forest service halted a $500,000 plan to upgrade the isolated beach after numerous local, state and federal agencies argued the improvement plan did not address traffic congestion.

The strongest opposition to the plan came from a group of Sycamore Canyon homeowners who believe the improvements would attract more visitors to the beach, increasing the current traffic problem.

Farr instigated Thursday's informal meeting to develop a strategy to control the flow of traffic to Pfeiffer that would satisfy the needs of both the private and public sectors.

A second session begins at 10:30 a.m. to discuss the forest service's five-year contract with Parks Management Co., a Morro Bay-based firm that was hired to maintain the facilities at Pfeiffer Beach.

At a Big Sur Multi Agency Council meeting last month, a roomful of residents voiced concerns about the company's plan to charge fees to use the beach.

Forest service officials said severe budget cuts forced the agency to seek help from the private sector to keep the beach open.

New CMS signal work starts

COUNTY OFFICIALS warn of minor delays accompanying construction of a traffic signal at the intersection of Carmel Valley Road, Rio Vista Drive and Carmel Middle School.

Work on the new signal and other improvements on and adjacent to the roadway began Tuesday morning.

Cost to the county will total about $241,300, according to Monterey County Public Works Director Gerald Gromko. The work is being carried out by The Don Chapin Co., Inc.

HERALD

He added: "We certainly expect no strike — I think we can see a conclusion to all this within the next couple of days."

Herald Editor Susan Miller said Wednesday: "It's my understanding that negotiations are going very well. I think we're moving closer to an agreement."

The unions fixed no date at which bargaining must stop. "We're not getting where we need to be" on salary and pension proposals, Cain said. "We're not making the progress that we need."

According to Cain, negotiators have been working day and night since Feb. 5. "We're really into the money issues now," he said. "Management's counter proposals seem to reflect a shortage of dollars, but we don't believe they're short that way."

The unions collaborated on what he called "complex proposals involving pay rates and retroactivity. We're such a long ways apart (the union and management positions) that we haven't even looked at the package in terms of actual dollars. That will come out as we get closer together."

Financial demands obviously must try to make up for the voluntary 5.44 percent pay slash all departments took after Scripps Howard acquired The Herald in a complex swap with Blade Communications (January 1993).

HILDEGARDE: 99 is oh so fine

Cone chronicled her unusual 93rd birthday party, dancing with the "Mud Men" of New Guinea in their annual Thanksgiving festival.

As the newspaper then reported:

When she arrived at the village, two women immediately took her to a grass hut and removed her clothing and covered her with clay ... A grass skirt, six strands of beads around her neck and headgear made of bird feathers and she was ready to hit the dance floor.

Travel and sightseeing were so much a part of Ferrera's upbringing "that I still can't go into a museum to this very day," she noted lightheartedly.

Still, her mother and father, a businessman, instilled in her a vital spirit of adventure.

"I can still remember traveling around Europe with my parents and saying, 'Do we have to see another cathedral?' But now I look back and think I'm glad we did those things."

She agreed conquering fear must be one of her longevity secrets.

The skydiving plan was raised intially for a laugh, but the idea took root, she noted. "We've always done something unusual, and this year will be no different."

Big Sur Land Trust purchases Condon property in Carmel Valley

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

THE BIG Sur Land Trust has bought the 82-acre Condon property as an addition to Garland Regional Park in Carmel Valley.

Escrow closed last week on the $1.84 million purchase, according to Brian Steen, the land trust's executive director.

"The land has been used by the public as hiking trails for many years, but this purchase will ensure that such public use will continue in the future," Steen said. "It prevents the development of 29 houses."

The Monterey County Board of Supervisors last May approved a controversial subdivision plan for the property, also known as the Veeder Ranch.

Steen noted that the deal was the fruit of "hard work, off and on, for a decade."

He noted that the Condon family, which has made additions to the park over the years, "had always hoped that an open space purchase of the 82 acres could be completed."

Funded by a loan obtained from the David and Lucile Packard Foundation and by private donations, the land trust will own the property and lease it to the Monterey Regional Park District.

The land trust has preserved some 11,000 acres of open space since its founding in 1978.

FITZPATRICK: 'Developers' Days'?

(Good grief, did I catch something just talking to good old Ed on the phone?)

TODAY'S QUOTE ... Liza Minelli on the death of Gene Kelly at 83:

"I know one thing — for the rest of my life, whenever it rains I'll think of him and smile."

OVEN A WONDERFUL TIME ... Pablo's Mexican restaurant in Forest Hill Center at the top of Forest in Pacific Grove has more than doubled its seating (to 45) by expanding into the storefront next door which used to be a movie rental shop.

Owner-chef Stuart Lobenberg's signature enchiladas with the great salsa sauce are still the restaurant's most-ordered item — not surprisingly.

WHEN he opened the place in 1983, he named it after his three-year-old son (whose name, if you're following along here, has got to be Pablo, and it is).

Pablo, now 16, is a cook in the restaurant, and his younger brother, Daniel, 13, is a busboy. If that is more than you ever wanted to know about Pablo's Mexican restaurant, just remember this is a column in public service, and "family values" is one of our strongest suits.

INCIDENTALLY, that small Forest Hill Center where Pablo's is located has become a veritable United Nations of restaurant activity!

Other eateries located there, besides Pablo's Mexican, include Vito's Italian, Fulina Chinese Kitchen, Brazilian Cafe, Bagel Bakery and Allegro Pizzeria, with Fifi's French Cafe & Bakery right next door!

ONWARD ... A plan by owners of Fresh Cream restaurant in Monterey's Heritage Harbor to take over the defunct Kiewel's restaurant directly below them has fallen through.

Ken Gardner, co-owner of Fresh Cream, said they were unable to obtain adequate financing to renovate and remodel Kiewel's in keeping with their plan, so they have decided to abandon the project.

Gardner and his associates had envisioned a restaurant less formal than Fresh Cream and completely separate that would serve bike riders, skaters and pedestrians from the recreation trail that passes in front of the place, as well as diners who would come by car from other parts of the city.

THUS, the stunning water-view location of the former Kiewel's, which folded last summer, remains closed in search of a tenant.

NOW THEN ... Marie McChrystal of Carmel wonders if we accept O.J.'s story that all of those facial bruises, black eyes, etc., on Nicole's face those many times were her own fault.

O.J. explained in depositions a week ago that all those things happened when Nicole attacked HIM and he was simply trying to defend himself against her powerful assaults.

MY answer, Marie, is yes, I do believe him. After all, has O.J. ever been known to lie? Of course not.

And my heart goes out to him because I can just imagine his terror as Nicole viciously rammed her nose and eyes and cheekbones into his fists! You may not realize it, but that can cause Painful Knuckle Syndrome.

POOR O.J., I thought the way Nicole bullied him almost from day one might sour him on marriage forever, but no — the jolly cut-up seems perfectly willing to take another stab at it.

Stout heart.

LASTLY ... That plan by Fort Ord reuse officials to organize "Developers' Days on the Monterey Peninsula" surely has to qualify for one of Herb Caen's "Unclear on the Concept" items.

Inviting 5,000 developers HERE, of all places?

LET'S see, maybe they could scout out Point Lobos and Big Sur for some giant new concrete and blacktop projects! I know every time I go to either of those places, I find myself longing for shopping malls and bowling alleys and oil refineries!

As we always say around here, "Where are the developers when we need them?"

"I'm convinced that there really is an advantage to local banking."

Demi Briscoe
Vice President/Branch Manager

For more than 14 years, I worked for a major California bank in our area. Then, I joined First National Bank... I'm now convinced that there really is an advantage to banking with a local bank.

I was raised in Carmel Valley... I attended local schools... I've worked closely with the people of our community through service organizations and local events... At First National, I'm able to use my knowledge of our community to respond to our customers' needs and make decisions locally. I believe that's a real advantage.

I'm proud of what First National represents to Carmel and Carmel Valley and I'm convinced that there's no better place to bank. If you haven't discovered the advantages of banking with us... stop by our Carmel Rancho office and meet our local staff... I'm sure you'll be convinced, too.

Doris Day's Best Friends

By DORIS DAY

Time for a check-up

IT'S A new year and time again for a reminder about annual check-ups for our Best Friends.

Young healthy animals generally need just one thorough exam each year, but older animals should be seen at least twice a year, possibly more if their health needs monitoring.

I'm a firm believer in preventive health care and I think it's very important to be familiar with your pet's general condition at all times. The best advice I can give is to be on the lookout for deviations from your pet's normal habits. Since an animal may try to hide an illness, be very observant of, and take seriously, any changes in your pet's routine.

This doesn't mean, of course, that you must rush to the veterinarian for every little variation in behavior but as a good rule of thumb, it's worth a call to the doctor if the change continues over a 24-hour period.

Video cats

There's an excellent article in the February issue of Cat Fancy magazine that focuses on videos aimed at cat owners.

A series called "Cat Behavior 101," made available by the San Francisco SPCA, looks particularly interesting. The three videos can be purchased individually or as a set.

■ The first video is called "What Makes Tabby Tick." It is especially recommended for the new cat owner but sounds like it's chock-full of good information about our feline friends whether you're new at this or already have a houseful!

■ The second video, "Correcting Bad Habits," has some excellent tips on how to correct common problems like litter box avoidance, spraying and furniture scratching. The emphasis is on looking at the problem from the cat's point of view, using positive reinforcement, being consistent and never yelling or hitting.

See DORIS DAY page 13

'Spay Day USA' set for Feb. 27

THE DORIS Day Animal League will coordinate the second annual "Spay Day USA" on Tuesday, Feb. 27.

Last year's Spay Day resulted in more than 28,000 dogs and cats being spayed or neutered as part of the effort to reduce pet overpopulation.

According to event organizers, one unaltered cat and her unaltered offspring can produce 420,000 cats in seven years, and one unaltered dog and her offspring can produce 67,000 dogs in six years. Information: 656-4499.

■ The third video, "Home Introductions," offers great suggestions for multi-cat households. You'll learn how to prevent and deal with feline aggression by identifying certain behaviors to determine your cat's true motive.

The reviewers of this article highly recommended these videos and I'm looking to viewing them myself. If you're interested, call 800/211-7722 for information on how to order.

Hair, hair everywhere

At least once a year, dogs "blow" their coats. In other words, they shed. Periodic shedding is part of the dog's normal hair growth cycle. The average cycle takes about 130 days: The hair grows, rests, dies and falls out.

What causes shedding? Some experts believe it's prompted by seasonal temperature changes; others attribute it to seasonal light changes.

The most effective way to minimize hair in your home is to brush your dog daily, and twice daily when it's blowing coat. There are many brush styles so check with your pet supply store and purchase a brush suitable for your dog's coat.

Blow-drying and brushing your dog at the same time will also loosen and remove excess coat. Be sure to use a low, cool setting to avoid burning your dog's skin. A professional grooming might be the answer when heavy shedding begins.

The secret to keeping hair under control in your home is consistency. Brush your pet regularly, vacuum frequently and use a flat bristle brush or lint roller to remove hair from furniture and clothing.

Most importantly, accept shedding as a natural part of sharing your home with a canine friend.

Chalk Talk

By JOE JACONETTE

Doing more with less

Is it possible for schools to accomplish more with fewer resources?

Yes, budgets are tight and everyone including teachers are convinced that "our plates are full" with more and more topics to cover and less time to teach. We could increase the length of the day and/or school year. This option requires a large infusion of additional dollars to pay the cost of increased labor.

Allow me to tell you about one strategy to increase educational opportunities for our students through collaboration with other school districts in the area. The Carmel Unified School District is currently working on three projects with other Peninsula districts, Monterey Peninsula College and California State University, Monterey Bay.

Compatible calendars

Wouldn't it be great if students across the Peninsula had classes and vacation periods at similar times? Last year, Peninsula districts began working together on a "Compatible Calendar Committee." It is a challenge to look for common ground given the diverse needs of six unions, three boards, parents, students and administrators.

We did have some success with Pacific Grove and Carmel districts adopting similar schedules for the first time. Work continues this year, as we try to bring all districts closer together. We can save time and stretch our funds by scheduling common training days for staff members across all three districts.

Working together

It is a financial challenge for small school districts to offer effective programs for advanced, gifted and talented students. The state provides little funding for this important educational program.

I believe we can work together to solve this common frustration. I have proposed the formation of an "advanced learning collaborative" for students on the Peninsula.

With the help of MPC and CSUMB, students in peninsula districts will have the opportunity for advanced seminars in technology, science, mathematics and languages.

The current plan will offer a pilot program to a select group of 200 middle school students from Pacific Grove, Carmel and Monterey. These students, once selected by their districts, will have the chance to work together on our college and university campuses in an exciting institute this summer. It also will be possible to continue this program in special seminars during the school year.

Imagine, sixth- through eighth-grade students going to college without paying tuition. This may all be possible through district, college and university cooperation never before imagined on the Peninsula.

Service and dedication

We have started a new program to recognize educators, support staff and volunteers in our schools. We know that we have a number of dedicated people who help our students above and beyond the call of duty.

Each month we will select individuals who demonstrate a particular service and dedication to education. Our school board will honor these individuals at our school site board meetings each month. For the month of January, please join us in celebrating the efforts of:

■ Certificated employee of the month:

Kay Pallastrini, teacher at River School. Mentor teacher in mathematics for CUSD, she serves as a math consultant statewide, provides math in service for teachers in the district and is representative on the Regional Math Committee.

■ Classified employee of the month:

Joe Olivetti, custodian / groundsperson at Captain Cooper School.

Joe pays attention to detail in his work. As both groundsperson and custodian, he excels — the school has never looked better!

■ Volunteer of the month:

Pam Priano, community member (not even a parent). She has contributed hundreds of hours of volunteer work, including: supervising field trips, judging and correcting spelling bees, helping in classrooms and with fund raisers, assembling monthly newsletter, selling SCRIP in front of Safeway on weekends and helping in the office.

Local students make their mark

THE FOLLOWING local students have recently achieved academic distinction on the peninisula or away at college:

■ Robert Louis Stevenson senior Alicia Haines and Carmel High School senior Bodhi Garrett were named the winners of the 3M Scholarship Essay Contest presented in conjunction with the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am.

Each student received a $1,000 college scholarship, and each school won $5,000 from 3M.

The annual contest is open to all high schools in the area.

For their efforts, Haines and Garrett were special guests of the tournament on the Wednesday prior to the first round at the 3M Celebrity Challenge.

■ Caitlin Smith, a senior at Stevenson, daughter of Bud Smith and Chris Campbell of Carmel, has been offered early admission to Colby College in Maine.

■ John Davi, a senior at Stevenson, son of John and Barbara Davi of Carmel, has been offered early admission at Stanford University.

■ Carmel High School Senior Quincy Struve has been nominated to compete in the national Principal's Leadership Award Scholarship Program. More than 150 national PLA winners will be chosen this spring to receive $1,000 college scholarships. In an unrelated development, Struve has been named winner of the Daughters of the American Revolution Essay contest for 1995 and awarded a Government Savings Bond.

■ Paul Joseph Tedrow, a 1989 graduate of CHS and son of Linda Shepard and David Tedrow of Carmel, recently earned a bachelor's degree in business management from North Carolina State.

■ Gilliel Stefan Kryger and Zolly Buer Kryger, both of Carmel Valley, have been selected for the dean's honor list for the fall quarter at the University of California at Santa Barbara.

■ Sophomore Heidi Giordano and freshman Megan Driscoll, graduates of Stevenson, and junior Genesta Cowen, a graduate of CHS, were named to the dean's list at Saint Mary's College of California for fall 1995.

■ Jessica Diamond, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Stephen Diamond of Carmel, was named to the Claremont McKenna College Dean's List for the '95 fall semester.

Peninsula will be site of key tourism meetings Tuesday

TOURISM ON both a state and local level will be spotlighted in separate meetings Tuesday on the Monterey Peninsula. Here's a closer look at the events:

■ All travel industry members are invited to a public meeting at 10 a.m. at the Monterey Bay Aquarium to learn more about the California Tourism Marketing Act.

The governor and the legislature established the act in 1995 to seek ways to adquately finance statewide tourism promotion through public and private partnerships.

The act authorizes California's travel industry to conduct a referendum to determine if it wishes to assess itself for the purpose of supplementing the state funded program.

■ Later, the Monterey Bay Visitors and Convention Bureau will hold its inaugural quarterly informational reception, called the VCB Tourist Connection.

It will run from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. at The Ballroom at the Inn at Spanish Bay, Pebble Beach.

The reception will include a presentation on quarterly room tax collections, VCB programs and travel and tourism statistics. In addition, the Monterey Bay Aquarium will present a brief summary of its 1995 market research.

New VCB materials such as the 1996 Visitors Guide and Travel Planner, 1996 Calendar of Events, 1996 Marketing Plan and "What's New on the Monterey Peninsula?" will be on display.

The cost to attend is $10 per person.

Those attending are asked to RSVP by calling 648-5358.

Carmel shops targeted for entry into PB window display contest

A CALL for windows!

Entrants are sought for the window display contest sponsored by The Pebble Beach Co. and Garden Design Magazine.

Open to all Carmel retail shops, the contest focuses on window displays that showcase the Pebble Beach Garden Show theme, "American Garden Style, Indoors and Out."

All participants will be awarded tickets to the garden show. The Pebble Beach Garden Show's Advisory Board will judge the storefronts that best convey the theme of the show during the week of April 8 to 12.

Deadline to enter is March 15.

Republican" who ran unsuccessfully for the office two years ago, cried foul.

"When I officially announced my candidacy in July, I had already accepted PAC money and contributions larger than $250," Brown said. "I didn't feel Chavez was giving me an appropriate request."

Over the past several weeks, Brown's signs and advertisements have dominated the landscape, while Chavez' presence has been felt mainly around his hometown, Salinas.

Doctor in the House?

While Chavez, a 29-year-old businessman from Salinas, hopes to outposition Brown as the opponent of business-as-usual, so does Barry Norris, a Soquel physician.

The 45-year-old Norris hopes to be viewed as the true citizen candidate, living by his banner of "principles, not politics."

"It's time," Norris said, "to give representative government back to the people of this country. Special interests have grabbed the reins and are driving the federal stagecoach at break-neck speed ... toward bankruptcy, dependency on government, loss of personal freedoms."

Norris said he has gained insights from his patients, who make up "a good cross-section." They express concerns to him not only on health care, but about jobs and the economy.

He said he is not a party-line Republican, noting certain areas where he disagrees with most conservatives, as in his opposition to the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA).

Norris said he opposes federal policies that erode the country's economic diversity. "I am against the idea that we will become a service economy in which our manufacturing has gone overseas," he said. "You have to have some farming, manufacturing and mining."

Chavez, however, indicated a contrary viewpoint, noting, "We must not be afraid of international competition and trade ... and (must) fight for free trade worldwide."

Chavez also stressed the importance of reducing bureaucracy and bloated federal departments — a theme among Republicans these days. Locally and regionally, the water shortage is the most pressing issue, he said.

Brown, an Aptos resident and the executive director of the Santa Cruz County Farm Bureau, finished second among Republicans in 1993. In that year and in 1994, Republican Bill McCampbell ran against Farr, losing both times.

Brown has been branded a "moderate Republican" because of his pro-choice stance on abortion and his opposition to the conservative-backed tax cuts. He noted he also shares views with many Democrats on social issues.

Brown's Republican orientation comes across most strongly when he attacks Farr for what he believes is a lackluster commitment to balancing the budget. Moreover, he believes Farr, a former Monterey County supervisor and state assemblyman, has ignored the principles of term limits and, in effect, made a career out of politics.

Because Brown has better name recognition than his two fellow GOP challengers, it is not surprising he hopes to keep the Republican primary low-key.

"It would not be productive to battle it out with others in the same party," he said.

Brown hopes to do what the Pebble Beach-based McCampbell could not do — gain big support in the more populous Santa Cruz side of the Monterey Bay.

Brown said that Bruce McPherson, R-Santa Cruz, proved it is possible for a Republican to make inroads in the Democratic terrain up north.

"Bill McCampbell didn't have that ability," Brown said. "I think I may have it. There is a confidence level people are going to have only with someone they are familiar with."

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

As Baby Boomers move into middle age, older Americans are setting records for longevity. Census Bureau data show that the number of people 85 or older increased by 230 percent since 1960, while the total population grew by only 30 percent. Longevity has reached the point where those who turned 65 in 1990 are expected to average 17 more years. More than 40,000 Americans now are 100 or older. Better health habits are credited in large part for the gains in life expectancy.

After finishing his freshman year in a Philadelphia high school in 1928, Howard Kenney left at 14 and got a job to help his family. He worked in a textile mill, railcar factory, naval shipyard, as a street builder and bridge inspector. In 1963 he earned a GED, accepted as the equivalent of a high school education. A daughter felt that his life achievements rated a real diploma. So did administrators at his former high school. When he attended a grandson's graduation this year, Howard Kenney, age 82, was called forward to receive his own diploma.

Padres' CCS bid buoyed by win over RLS

By PATRICK FOUDY

COACH GARY Greeno said: "Defense is going to win it."

The Carmel High School boys varsity basketball coach was talking about his team's playoff hopes and the importance that staunch defense will play in that equation.

"It's what's gotten us here thus far," said Greeno, who has stressed tough play on the defensive end in his first season at CHS.

Carmel stands at 5-5 (9-12 overall) and must remain at .500 to advance with just one more regular season game in the way.

The team tipped off with 6-4 Palma Wednesday — after The Pine Cone deadline. Depending on the outcome of the game, Carmel's regular season finale Friday night against Pacific Grove likely will be the most crucial game all season. The Padres will hope to scuttle the 8-2 Breakers at home with a 7 p.m. jump.

Carmel holds the advantage of increased momentum coming into the final stretch after winning both games last week. Three Padres reached 20 points last Wednesday in an 83-72 victory over King City. Ryan Sanchez and Nick Cardinale each knocked down 22 while Ben Cook added 21.

More success

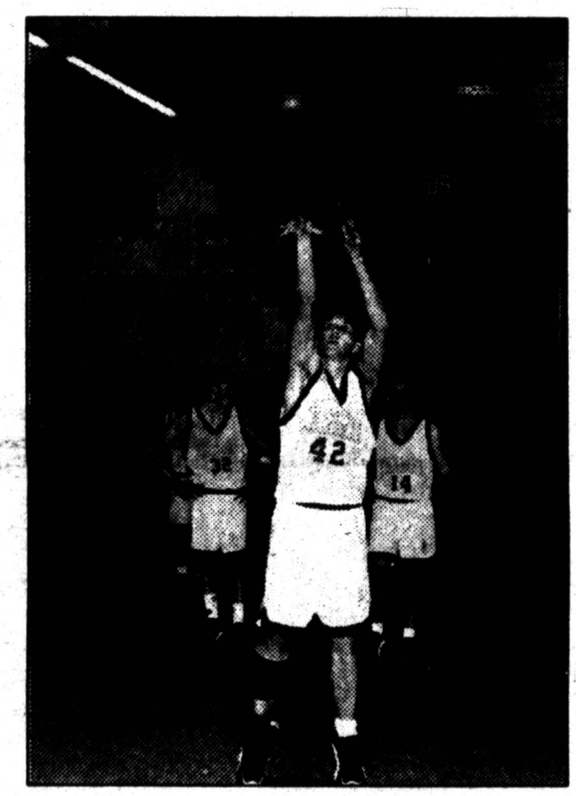
The Padres were successful in what was essentially a must-win game against crosstown rival Robert Louis Stevenson last Friday. They turned back the visiting Pirates in a hard fought contest, 59-52.



Ryan Sanchez puts the game away as he sinks a free throw with just five seconds remaining to give Carmel High its seven-point margin of victory over Stevenson.

Carmel had chances to put it away early as they jumped out to a 9-0 and 12-0 runs to begin the first and second quarters, but RLS was able to come right back.

All eyes were on the matchup of probably the two most talented players in the Mission Trail Athletic League. Carmel's

Stevenson boys, girls headed in different directions with CCS post-season action on horizon

By JOHN DAVI

AFTER TWO consecutive losses, a beleaguered Robert Louis Stevenson boys varsity basketball squad is searching for a way to get back on track before the regular season ends.

Defeats at the hands of Pacific Grove and Carmel last week tossed the Pirates, who now are fighting for crucial seeding in the Central Coast Section playoffs — far behind their original goal of the top bill in the tournament.

Last Friday night, the visiting Pirates were overwhelmed by a steady Carmel High defense, which held Stevenson star Sean Jackson to only 13 points, and fell to the Padres, 59-52. The loss dropped the Pirates (6-5) into fourth place in the MTAL, only a half-game ahead of Carmel (5-5).

According to senior Michael Jackson, however, the Pirates will be ready for the CCS tourney. "We went out," Jackson said, "and saw a team movie, White Squall, to make everyone come together, hoping to lift our spirits from the game on Friday. We do need a lot more spirit, but CCS is really going to be up for grabs."

Jackson cited Stevenson's earlier victory over Pacific Grove, CCS's No. 1 seed, as fuel for the team's postseason fire.

"You never know what can happen," he concluded, optimistically.

The boys concluded MTAL play against King City on Wednesday (after Pine Cone press deadline), and will await to find out next week's first-round opponent in the CCS tournament.

■ GIRLS BASKETBALL

With eight consecutive wins under its belt, the Pirates have exactly what they need as they prepare for the CCS tournament this week: confidence. After a shaky start to the MTAL, the Pirates (10-3) have fended off every opponent, and rooted themselves securely in second place.

Their league success seems to have had an effect on their postseason play, as well.

"We're really excited," senior Gina Chappin said, "because, more than likely, we'll have a home

Sanchez was able to hold Cal-bound Sean Jackson to just four second half points and 13 overall while turning in a game high 23.

"Ryan played extremely good defense on Sean," said Greeno. "We knew we could do it.

"We've won three of our last four and are peaking at the right time. It was a must win."

Amir Masiliyah and Matt Allen also played strong defense throughout the game while scoring nine and six points, respectively. Cook and Cardinale contributed eight apiece.

game for our first playoff game. "Wins in the final games of the regular season, which concludes Friday against Alvarez, will indeed put the Pirates at home in Wednesday's tournament opener.

Stevenson's steady play continued throughout last week, as the Pirates notched victories over Pacific Grove and Carmel. A 45-27 win over the Padres, led by Desiree Evans-Claasen's 10 points and 14 rebounds, sealed Stevenson's 10th win of the season.

"I didn't think we played real good games," Chappin said of the Pacific Grove and Carmel contests, "but we pulled off the wins."

■ LACROSSE

A disappointing season for Stevenson lacrosse was finally put in the books last weekend, with the Pirates dropping their final game of league play, 7-1, against first place Cate School on Saturday.

Finishing with a 2-6 record, the Pirates, last year's Condor League champions, were nowhere near the sparkling 8-0 Cate record.

The Pirates did, however, bounce back on Sunday with a 7-1 nonleague victory against Ojai.

Leading the scoring for Stevenson over its final lacrosse weekend of the regular season were Blanc Lochridge and Matt Harris, with three goals apiece.

The team will officially conclude its season in March, after the Golden Gate Tournament in Mountain View.

3 wrestlers qualify for CCS action

THREE CARMEL High wrestlers managed to qualify for the Central Coast Section post-season competition after successful outings in the Mission Trail Athletic League Championships at King City last Thursday.

Toby Lauterbauch placed second in the 152-pound division with a victory over his foe from Pacific Grove and a loss to his opponent from Palma.

Russel Brunet and Jason Remynse placed third in their respective weight classes. Brunet weighed in just under 145 and pinned a Breaker before losing to the No. 1 seed from Palma. He clinched the CCS berth with a clutch victory over an Alisal Trojan in his third match. Remynse went 1-1.

■ FIELD HOCKEY

This just wasn't the year for the Padres, who had only three returning players from last year's varsity squad. The girls went winless in 10 games, but turned in a gutsy effort year-round.

Standouts for Carmel towards the end of the season were seniors Jenny Summers, goalie Jessica Manke, Shelby Wilson, who took control of the backfield, and junior Whitney Fisher.

The players held their heads high, and all agreed that it was a successful season in that they had fun and improved.—P.F.

■ GIRLS SOCCER

Carmel's first-ever girls soccer team turned in a successful season and finished at the .500 mark with a 6-6-2 record — which was good enough to nab fourth place.

Down a goal in the closing minutes against Pacific Grove on Jan. 30, the Padres were able to come through with some late heroics to tie the game at 2-2. Martta Atrilla blasted a shot into the back of the net to tie things up, while Sarah Coombe tallied the first Padre goal.

After being shut out in the first meeting against RLS, Carmel came out with a vengeance on Feb. 1 and won 3-2. Scoring for the Padres were Jenn Donnelly, Atrilla and Coombe, who added yet another goal to her super sophomore season.

The girls capped the year with a 0-0 tie against Santa Catalina.

"We had a great season, considering it was our first," said senior captain Jenn Scholl. "We surprised a lot of people, including ourselves. The program can only get better."

—P.F.

■ BOYS SOCCER

The CHS boys soccer team wrapped up a successful season last week, finishing at 6-7-3 and in fourth place in the highly competitive MTAL.

This week brought accolades for the talented Padres, who were well represented with Sabit Dumisic and sophomore Jacob Kovacs on the All-MTAL Team.

All-League Honorable Mention went to juniors John Pfeiffer and Ben Armbrust, while senior John Martine and fantastic frosh Brendon Jones also earned the honor.

Top goal-scorer Brian Johnson, a senior, was named team MVP for the Padres.

■ GIRLS BASKETBALL

After a tough loss to Robert Louis Stevenson, the 4-10 Padres look to finish out their season with a win over rival Pacific Grove at 6:45 p.m. Friday in the Breakers' gym.

Carmel handed the Breakers a decisive loss in their Jan. 24 meeting

In defense of the mayor

Dear Editor:

This is in response to the letter in the Feb. 1 Pine Cone headlined "Mr. Mayor's double speak?"

Among many examples, Mayor Ken White certainly has shown his concern for the elderly, as well as for all Carmel residents, when he and the city council took the stand they did in retaining the ambulance service provided by Carmel Regional Fire Ambulance.

For the first time in our 54 years of married life, it became necessary recently to call "911." How quick was the response and how caring the attention of those fine paramedics, and how grateful I'll always be for that attention.

In my mind the shifting of the adult education from one rent-free room to another rent-free room pales by comparison. At least the class wasn't left out in the cold but was "given" other usable space. So I see no valid reason for complaint.

It is not only this issue of caring for our citizenry, many of whom are elderly but many others that certainly will be remembered by me when Mayor White stands for reelection in April.

Cancers of the skin

Dear Editor:

In its Feb. 8 issue, The Pine Cone eloquently documented a family's and this community's loss from skin cancer.

It seems timely to provide the following information. In so doing, no judgment is made concerning the referenced case, about which we have no information.

Cancers of the skin are almost always carcinomas or melanomas. There are more new carcinomas of the skin in the United States each year than all other cancers of the body.

The U.S. lifetime risk of melanoma used to be about 1 in 1,500; 10 years ago it was 1 in 200; it is now about 1 in 100. The primary risk factors are family history, fair skin (basically all of us) and sun (as in California). These cancers are visible, not concealed in our bodies.

Any changing growth of the skin is suspect, i.e. size, shape, asymmetry, elevation, color, bleeding, ulceration, pain, itching, burning, other. If you experience such, immediately see a dermatologist of your choice.

A biopsy is performed and the tissue is examined microscopically. A diagnosis is made. A skin biopsy is basically painless, takes minutes to do, does not intrude on subsequent activities and is very economical.

In a given life things sometimes do not go well. God's call. But in general, with early diagnosis and treatment of visible changing growths of the skin, virtually all carcinomas and melanomas (not just 80 percent) of the skin are curable.

We won't be derailed

Dear Editor:

Once again, the shots in the battle of overturning the will of the people of Monterey County have been fired.

Apparently, certain people have decided that Monterey County is not worthy of traditional elements of democracy such as electing public officials through majority vote — on which this county and its institutions were founded.

The forces behind undermining countywide municipal court elections condescendingly believe that Monterey County voters were incapable of electing the most qualified candidate for judge. These forces maintain that a certain number of judicial slots should be reserved for minority candidates.

What is ironic is that these special interest groups seek to taint the judicial system — which is supposed to administer justice impartially and blind to race, color, creed, etc. — with inherently biased set aside programs.

It was partially due to my desire to combat such injustice and favoritism that I decided to run for Monterey County Municipal Court Judge. It was my sincere goal to be a judge elected by "the people."

I am happy to say that my campaign got off the ground with individuals who were looking for an honest candidate untainted by political gamesmanship. I am eternally grateful to all those people for their sincere support and words of encouragement.

Although the forces responsible for the postponement of the elections surely hope that their actions have led to the derailment of this grassroots campaign, let there be no doubt. The fight for the heart and soul of this community continues unabated.

I honestly believe that the tide has turned and that the democratic forces in this county will overcome the tyranny of special interest groups. I am confident that our efforts in the future will translate this latest setback as nothing more than the shallow victory that it is.

Fight RSC approval

Dear Editor:

Following the Monterey County Board of Supervisors' approval Feb. 6 of a housing development for Rancho San Carlos, citizens alarmed by the impact and destruction inherent in this project are gathering signatures for a ballot referendum to reverse the zoning changes necessary for the project to proceed.

Registered voters countywide are eligible to sign as well as gather signatures. As

American Youth Hostels an ideal fit for Flanders

Tenant would attract international clientele

By STEVE BROOKS

THE CITY is looking for a tenant for Flanders Mansion who could provide funding to restore and maintain the building, enhance uses for residents and visitors, allow occasional public access and do all this with a low impact on the neighborhood.

American Youth Hostels (AYH) can meet these requirements and has a track record to prove it. With grants from the California Coastal Conservancy and other entities, AYH has restored historic cottages in Santa Cruz, and moved and restored a three-story Victorian mansion in Sacramento at costs of more than $1.5 million.

Steve Brooks

Under city ownership since 1972, the 15-room Flanders has not been fully used, and the hopes for maintenance and upgrading have not been realized.

As a hostel, Flanders would accommodate 24 to 30 guests, either in small dormitories or private rooms. Hostels are closed between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. with locker storage provided for guests who stay more than one night. A 10 p.m. curfew with quiet hours after 11 p.m. is a typical procedure.

Hostels are friendly, environmentally sensitive, safe accommodations for budget-minded travelers of all ages.

A hostel of this size typically attracts four or five cars. Guests arriving on public transportation or bicycle would be directed to the Carmel Mission, from which they would take the 10-minute walk through Mission Trail Park to the front entrance of the Mansion.

During the day, the building would be available for community activities. For example, Flanders could be used for workshops during the annual doctors convention and the kitchen and dining room could be used for luncheon meetings. Overnight accommodations could also be reserved for City functions.

Typical fee

A typical fee of $12 per night would support one full-time resident manager and a half-time assistant manager, one of whom would be present whenever guests were on site. The revenue would pay operating and maintenance expenses as well as the cost of upgrades.

AYH is able to inject a considerable sum of money to start new hostels, and this would be used to bring the plumbing, heating, and electrical systems up to requirements and to make the building handicap accessible. AYH, headquartered in Washington D.C., provides a million-dollar liability coverage to licensed association Hostels.

A major obstacle to any change in a community is the difficulty of visualizing the impact. This was true of our beach walkway.

The residents along Scenic feared the impact of increased public use and reduced parking. As it turned out, I think the community at large including most of the immediate neighbors believe the walkway has been a positive change.

What would a hostel at Flanders be like? The answer is hard to visualize, but still easy to answer.

Easy because there are already 5,000 hostels operating worldwide, 11 in Northern California, so we have these examples to study; hard because hostels are the best kept secret in the country with most Carmel residents, including the politicians who will make the decision, having no first-hand experience with hostels. Human nature resists change and fears the unknown as did the residents along Scenic.

'To help all'

The "mission" of hosteling is, "To help all, especially the young, to gain a greater understanding of the world and its people." Hostels are friendly, environmentally sensitive, safe accommodations for budget-minded travelers of all ages. They are places to spend the night and meet others who share a sense of adventure, curiosity and love of travel.

Most hostels have local committees that supervise the Hostel and design and lead interpretive and social programs. This interaction provides and opportunity to share cultures between the hostlers and local residents.

A Hostel in Flanders would attract an international clientele of travelers not now served by Carmel, travelers eager to experience our community. Hostels are highly structured well-supervised operations with a reputation for being good neighbors.

For the first time during city ownership, the building would be fully used and its dramatic location appreciated. This is not a pipe dream. This is the reality that already exists in hostels in Santa Cruz, at Pigeon Point and Montara Point Light houses, and at Sanborn Park Lodge west of Saratoga.

Preserving the Row

"Working Days on Cannery Row: A Symposium" makes sure history remains intact

page 2B

Revisiting

THE ROW

Event to take in-depth look at working people of Cannery Row's rich history

PENINSULA STAFF REPORT

LOCALS OFTEN remark about how Cannery Row has drifted away from its history to become a tourist trap. The Cannery Row Foundation has slated two events to direct attention back to the Row's roots.

On Friday and Saturday this week, the Row will be alive not with throngs of tourists, but with a celebration of John Steinbeck's 94th birthday and with a two-day symposium, Working Days on Cannery Row.

The mission of the nonprofit Cannery Row Foundation, made up of business people and individuals working with the City of Monterey, is "to preserve and foster historical study and interest in Cannery Row," and this is just one way of trying to do it.

The birthday celebration has come a long way since the spaghetti and red wine parties held at Kalisa's La Ida Cafe more than 20 years ago. Since the birthday celebration has expanded into a Row-wide festival, attendance has been so high that people are turned away at the doors of the symposium each year.

"This is a subject that is very dear to people," Winston Elstob, past president of the Cannery Row Foundation and one of the event's organizers, told Peninsula. "This has truly become a community event."

The birthday celebration begins at 4:30 p.m. Saturday with the dedication of the new Irving Street Parkway, which commemorates a special piece of Cannery Row history because it stands beside the vacant lot described in Steinbeck's Cannery Row and was the site of many of the novel's scenes.

Noted speakers at symposium

The site for the free symposium is the Monterey Bay Aquarium auditorium, where things kick off at 7 p.m. Friday with a presentation of "John Steinbeck's Cannery Row: Real People, Real Places" by Cannery Row historian Michael Hemp, maritime historian Scrap Lundy, local photo archivist Pat Hathaway and local historian/columnist Bonnie Gartshore.

John Steinbeck's 'The Harvest Gypsies,' about working people in the Depression era, will be discussed during the symposium 'Working Days on Cannery Row.'

The presentation is followed by Bay Area radio personality Ed Markmann entertaining participants with selections from Steinbeck's The Harvest Gypsies and from the author's letters, as part one of "Bindlestiffs and Fruit Tramps: Steinbeck and Working People," dramatizations bringing to life Steinbeck's writings about working people in Cannery's Row's heyday.

Friday's entertainment concludes with a performance of In Dubious Battle, under the direction of Unicorn Theatre Artistic Director Carey Crockett. Performers — members of the Unicorn Theatre — include Emmy-award winning actor Karner Benjamin, Ron Cohen and Steve Harris. The short play enacts an incident from Steinbeck's novel about union organization in the apple orchards of the Northwest.

Part two of "Bindlestiffs and Fruit Tramps" is set for 7:30 p.m. Saturday, with scenes from Of Mice and Men, featuring Steve McGrath of Unicorn Theatre and Joe Yetlica of The Western Stage. Ed Markmann concludes the evening's entertainment with selections from The Grapes of Wrath and other Steinbeck works.

Saturday's daytime events are a series of talks providing a look at the diverse early communities that lived and worked on Cannery Row. The schedule is as follows:

- 9:15-10:15 a.m.: A slide-illustrated overview by Sandy Lydon, history professor at Cabrillo College;
- 10:30-11:30 a.m.: "Dorothea Lange's World War II Photographs" by Charles Wollenberg, editor of The Harvest Gypsies;
- 11:30 a.m.-12:45 p.m.: "The Italians on Cannery Row: A Panel Discussion" by John Crivello, Rose Marie Cutino Topper, Anthony G. Davi and Catherine

New look, but same features you expect

WELCOME TO the premiere edition of Peninsula, the arts and entertainment section for The Carmel Pine Cone and Monterey Times newspapers.

The debut of Peninsula coincides with another significant development for us — the birth of the Times. While the advent of the Times spurred us to adopt this new look for the arts and entertainment section, it is something we intended to do for some time.

For those of you familiar with Section 2 of The Pine Cone, there's no need to worry! Peninsula will contain all of the features you know and enjoy: profiles; music, film and theater reviews; Social Spotlight; calendar; Jazz Tides and real estate.

Only now you'll find a fresher, splashier look — a magazine-style format that we believe also is easier to read.

Ivy's League

By Ivy Weston

I've now been at The Pine Cone for 19 months, and won't hide my excitement about the new look and our expansion into Monterey.

I'd like to welcome any new readers we may be picking up in Monterey, Pacific Grove, Seaside and Sand City. We're thrilled that we'll now reach a wider audience with our two community newspapers that accent local coverage.

About the Calendar

As you will notice, the Calendar will now run Friday through Thursday, rather than Thursday through Wednesday. This is good news for those of you holding events on Thursdays — instead of The Pine Cone carrying notice of the event the very day it occurs, it will now receive one full week's notice.

As a courtesy to readers looking for things to do on the day the newspaper hits the streets, Section 1 of The Pine Cone each week will include "today" happenings.

Calendar deadlines remain the same: Submissions are due by Thursday at noon. Entries can be faxed (624-8076) or mailed (P.O. Box G-1, Carmel, 93921) to my attention.

Because the Calendar is a public service, we put a ceiling on admission prices for events. Any event listing tickets or admission above $50 will not be considered.

Let us hear from you

'Ivy's League' will run periodically in Peninsula to give me an opportunity to speak directly to you — our valued readers — about issues, policy decisions or just to chat.

If you have any comments about the new Peninsula section, please let me know by either mail, fax, phone (624-0162) or e-mail (cmlpncone@aol.com). Feedback is encouraged and always appreciated.

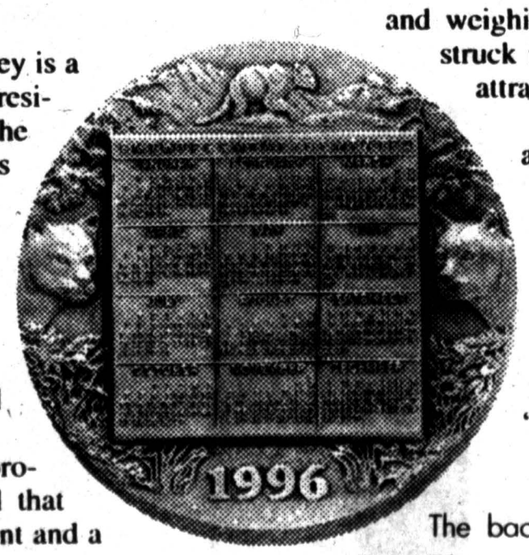
Hoffman Mint puts Monterey on map with inaugural medal, international clientele

By BETH PENNEY

TUCKED AWAY in North Monterey is a business most Monterey Peninsula residents probably don't know exists — the Hoffman Mint, which has been business since 1980. It doesn't make money, at least not for its customers.

Instead, it strikes millions of souvenir coins, tokens, medallions, key tags and medals each month. In January 1993, the mint was selected to strike President Bill Clinton's Inaugural Medal.

The Hoffman Mint's most recent project is a 1996 bronze calendar medal that bears the image of a cougar on the front and a 12-month calendar on the back. Three inches in diameter and weighing half a pound, the medal will be struck in a limited number to make it more attractive to collectors.



The back side of the Hoffman Mint's new cougar calendar medal.

Although advance publicity has announced a striking of 5,000 pieces, Hoffman Mint President Michael Hoffman told Peninsula that "probably fewer than 1,000 will be struck, making it more collectible."

The cougar medal is the first of a planned series of calendar medals that will feature threatened species. "We've wanted to recognize the

There's no time like the present to enjoy artichokes

KNOCK, KNOCK
Who's there?
Artie.
Artie who?
Artichoke season is here again.

Although we enjoy the edible blossom of the artichoke all year long, February, March and April signify the peak of the growing season. The sumptuous globes are a rich, even green, ready to be harvested and enjoyed. In the fall the vegetable tends to be more conical in shape and less meaty.

This perennial thistle-like plant is a 2,500 year old native to the Mediterranean region and the Canary Islands. According to Italian recipes from the 1400s, it was the young leaves that were blanched and eaten while the blossoms were reserved for ornamental use only.

Artichokes require rich soil near the sea and a mild, humid climate. They reproduce from shoots, seedlings or suckers and can live up to 15 years.

A large artichoke contains only 25 calories, no fat, is low in sodium and high in vitamin C, rich in magnesium and potassium; all in all a near-perfect food without (sadly) an accompanying sauce.

Our locally produced artichoke, the globe, is the only one raised commercially in the United States and primarily in the central foggy districts of California. However, Belgium, France and other Mediterranean countries grow a larger assortment of artichokes.

France is particularly partial to the artichoke's culinary possibilities, as after all it was Napoleon's chef who was the creator of hollandaise sauce, perhaps to ease the tedium of his boss' exile on Elba.

The French settlers brought artichoke cuttings to Louisiana where they are still grown today. The Spanish planted them along the Central California coast 200 years ago and some of these fields are still producing large crops.

From cows to artichokes

In Carmel, right in our own backyard, are prime artichoke fields overseen by the Odello family. Originally, the east and west fields were low-lying river land encrusted with willow trees and brambles. But in 1910 a Monterey mortician named Tom Oliver purchased the west portion, the 95 acres that Clint Eastwood bought last year and has leased back to the Odellos.

Oliver cleared the land and ran two strings of milking cows (approximately 50 cows) on it, creating what was known as a Class B dairy. The milk was transported to Monterey by surrey and then on to San Francisco by train, where it was processed into condensed milk. The dairy closed down in 1924 but the tri-peaked roof barn and the dairy house still stand on the property.

A high yielding acre can produce 250 boxes of artichokes. The Odello artichoke is shipped as far as New York City by refrigerated truck.

In 1903 Batista Odello arrived in America from Italy and found employment as a miner, a logger and eventually as a blast furnace operator in South San Francisco. In 1924 he came down to Carmel, rented the dairy land and began raising artichokes with the help of his sons Bruno and Emilio.

In 1953 the family purchased the 80-acre field to the east of Highway 1 that had originally been part of Rancho Sur Chuquito, a Mexican land grant. In 1974 the California Department of Parks and Recreation acquired this field and has since leased it back to the Odello family.

Today Bruno's son John is foreman of the operation, which employs six workers. Three of the five houses on the east side adjacent to the white sorting and packing barn were old Carmel Village cottages that were moved in the mid-1950s to house the workers.

Formerly, a second, larger barn was situated near Highway 1 and during the 1920s and '30s it served as a stable for the local roadway's maintenance crew.

Odello artichokes in NYC

This season's artichoke crop will be skimpy because of last year's flood damage. Forty acres of prime land were swept away by the Carmel river.

This was the only time since the Odello family has owned the property that the river had backed into the west field. The levee has since been moved 200 feet farther from the river to create a wider overflow channel to prevent future flooding.

Each year at the end of the peak growing season the plants are cut back and the foliage is plowed under. Every five years the plants are replaced and the new ones are planted in the middle rows.

Pesticides are never sprayed on the crop; instead, a dry mixture of phosphate, nitrogen and pot ash is used to help dispel the plum moth, the artichoke's number one enemy.

A high yielding acre can produce 250 boxes of artichokes. The Odello artichoke is shipped as far as New York City by refrigerated truck.

While visiting with Bella and Bruno Odello in their spacious, cozy kitchen overlooking the west field, I asked Bella if after all these years she was sick of preparing artichoke dishes. For years when her family was young she made cream of artichoke soup, artichoke fritters and deep fried the baby artichokes found lower down on the stem.

But now, she says, it is someone else's turn.

Last Christmas, however, she steamed (for about 40

THEATER REVIEW/James P. Kinney

Six actors easily handle challenge of multiple roles in racy 'Dining Room'

CERTAIN SPACES, I am convinced, house ghosts.

I don't mean the buildings themselves, but the airy spaces in which things happen, surrounded by wood, masonry and bricks, as well as those outdoor spaces unencumbered by walls. And my ghosts are not the scary ones that inhabit good fairy tales and bad movies; instead, I refer to the comforting spirits of those no longer with us.

Sometimes, slipping into Monterey's historic San Carlos Cathedral on Church Street when it's unoccupied, I kneel, whisper a few prayers, then simply sit back and listen quietly to two centuries of Gregorian chant, whispered Latin and timeless ceremony.

But this feeling of mine is hardly confined to holy spaces. I have sat on the second floor of Kalisa's La Ida Cafe on Cannery Row sipping a beer, and listened to the ghosts of long departed commercial fishermen in the throes of sexual bliss with long departed ladies of the evening, also commercial, upstairs at what was known as La Ida's during the Steinbeck era.

WHAT: The Dining Room
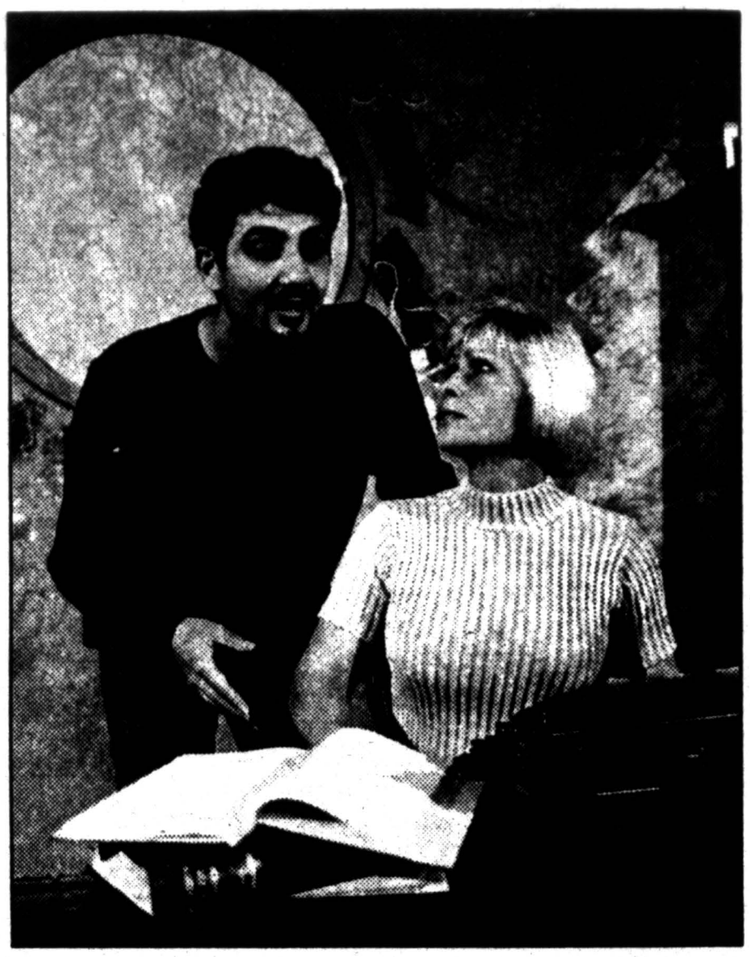
WHERE: SRO Theatre, Monterey Peninsula College
WHEN: 8 p.m. Thursdays, Fridays, Saturdays; 2 p.m. Sundays, through Feb. 24
COST: $7 general, $5 students/seniors
RESERVATIONS: 646-4213

This feeling permeates A. R. Gurney's The Dining Room, which is in the midst of a short run at Monterey Peninsula College's small SRO Theater.

The space in question is the elegant dining room of a comfortable family home somewhere in New England. The ghosts are family members, their friends and acquaintances over the better part of a century, all played by six local veteran actors who are given the heady opportunity to portray young and old, comic and tragic, calm and troubled, domestic and foreign, all in the duration of a single play.

At first I concentrated intently, trying to keep track of the interrelationships. But I soon gave that up as too much work — even for a critic — and relaxed into the enjoyable ensemble performances of a group who knew exactly what they were about.

The action slides from one overlapping scene into another. Characters from one era sit at table cheek to jowl with characters from another, oblivious to each other. Thus the action flows seamlessly, even though there are numerous costume and light changes.



John Farmanesh and Denise Terrazas are at ease in the several roles they play in A.R. Gurney's 'The Dining Room.'

So well done

There are no weak scenes. But some are so well done they warrant separate mention. In the first scene, an overbearing, ridiculing father (Kevin Nolan Caston) berates a needful son (Jerry Gill) for his infatuation with a grade school teacher while a mother (Dierdre McCauley) looks helplessly on.

There are several other excellent scenes:

■ At a Thanksgiving dinner, an anxious family watches in mounting anguish and horror as their mother (Sandy Williams) politely asks to be taken home by what appears to her a group of kindly strangers who have invited her

Vibes master Milt Jackson set to perform at Kuumbwa

THE MAN reflects the wit, skill and staying power that we celebrate each February when Black History Month comes back. In fact, this special period could have no better representative entering the regional jazz scene than the natty giant they call Bags.

Jazz Tides

By John Detro

Of course, Milt Jackson doesn't see himself in those big, mythic terms. He's on the road and still doing the work that he has done for half a century. I guess that's how he would put the matter — if he bothered to talk about it at all.

Masters achieve a certain dignified reserve by letting the music's spirit speak through them. His vibes and mallets will have most of the best lines when Bags appears at Kuumbwa Jazz Center of Santa Cruz on Monday night with one of the planet's all-time best rhythm sections.

Working behind him: Cedar Walton at the piano, John Clayton on bass and drummer Billy Higgins. Shows at 7:30 and 9:30; $15 advance (Cymbaline Records) or $17 at the door.

Bags got his start in the 1940s and was a close friend of the first bebop commandos — Bird, Monk, Mingus, Kenny Clarke, Diz. He applied the swift new music's principles to vibes just as J.J. Johnston applied them to trombone and Tadd Dameron put them into big band charts.

He's a frequent composer of blues-based originals. And he recently won the top slot on his instrument in Down Beat magazine's Readers Poll for 1995. So — see you at Kuumbwa?

(The Nuclear Whales Saxophone Orchestra will play there on Friday beginning at 8 p.m. It's $6 per — at the door only.)

Pianist Graham Connah's gigs at Kuumbwa (he lived in Santa Cruz from 1980-90) were vital to his development. These days, he runs counter to the New Traditionalists like Wynton Marsalis and Benny Green, bypassing standard treatments in favor of group improvisation, free jazz, risk.

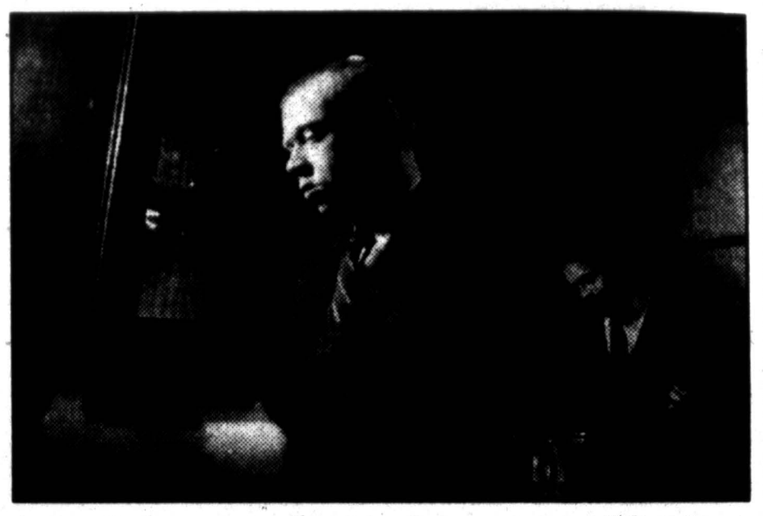
As his San Francisco group readies to play Saturday night at Whitey's Place (American Tin Cannery), Connah says:

"It's pointless for us to make recordings of standards, though I enjoy playing them. Jazz musicians have been recording them for decades. Listeners who want that material know where to find it. I'm not trying to compete with Coleman Hawkins."

Critics have likened him to Herbie Hancock and Cecil Taylor.

Whitey's imports on Friday night (Feb. 16) another band off the SF Bay Area New Jazz Scene — SAID. Members Erik Dormody, Eddie Garnero, Redhouse and Hal Olieri say they offer "the pulse of funk" plus "contemporary melodies with some adventure to them."

Saxist and flute player Redhouse adds Native American chants. Drummer Dormody has studied with one of the finest — Peter Erskine. Cover (both nights) of $5 per; both shows kick off at 9 p.m.



Pianist Graham Connah will lead a group Saturday night at Whitey's Place in the American Tin Cannery.

The Jazz Store (right beside KRML Radio over in The Crossroads) has future programming well worth your attention. Here's a close look at upcoming stars:

■ Thursday, Feb. 15 — Smith Dobson Quartet. With wife Gail on vocals, son Smith Jr. on drums and vibes, bassist Stan Poplin.

■ Saturday, Feb. 24 — Claudia Villela, magical singer of Brazilian jazz, plus Weber Drummond at the piano.

■ Saturday, March 2 — Flutist Ali Ryerson. She recently released another CD on the Concord Jazz label.

■ Tuesday, March 5 — Mose Allison and trio. Jazz and blues vocals along with Mose's extraordinary pianism.

■ Saturday, March 30 — Solo jazz piano program by Roger Kellaway. Masterful performer.

■ Saturday, April 20 — Magnificent singer Rebecca Parris and trio. Tough or tender. Any way you like.

■ Saturday, May 4 — Not to be missed. Denny Zeitlen at the piano and David Friesen on bass.

■ Saturday, May 25 — Saxist Mel Martin and pianist Al Plank. Strong players from San Francisco.

■ Saturday, June 1 — Trumpeter Mike Vax fronting a quartet.

There's usually a wine tasting between sets one and two. Additional details: 624-6432.

Short takes: The Bravo Channel continues its special programming for Black History Month on Friday night (Feb. 16) and the following night.

Friday — Masters of American Music. Satchmo: Louis Armstrong. Saturday — Masters of American Music. Count Basie: Swinging the Blues. Check local listings for the correct starting times.

— Don't forget the jazz benefit set March 9 at Sunset Center by the Carmel Unified School District Music Boosters. The group will present pianist and composer Toshiko Akiyoshi in a trio format. Paul Brocchini has ticket info — 624-1414.

— Blues blowout. Red Beans and Rice plays Doc Ricketts' Lab on Friday night (Feb. 16).

— The Brasstree Lounge blues show of Friday night will feature the Broadway Band with John Tucker. Prizes, KPIG and KAZU deejays as MCs. Saturday night — The Delta Dragons.

— Guest artists with percussionist Helcio Milito and pianist Weber Drummond at the Inn at Spanish Bay: bassist Dennis Murphy (Friday night, Feb. 16) — jazz vocalist Peggy Brown (Saturday night) — Murphy again on Sunday night.

Stunning variety of scenes keeps 'Dining Room' exciting

into their home for the holiday. Touching.

■ In an absolutely hilarious seduction scene, a workman (Caston) called in to do minor repairs on the dining room table gradually becomes aware of mounting sexual tension as he is slithered over by the increasingly lubricious woman of the house (McCauley) who announces breathlessly, "I've never been under a table quite like this before."

■ A harassed mother (Denise J. Terrazas) tries to control rowdy kids at her daughter's birthday party while maintaining her unraveling decorum in attempting to fend off the advances of a hot-blooded lover pursuing an untimely "quickie."

■ A doddering grandfather (John Farmanesh) harshly browbeats a grandson (Gill) in front of an aged domestic (McCauley) when the grandson tries to discuss his reasons for wanting to attend a respected private school. The grandfather (walks 90, talks 50) is convinced the boy is only after his money. A painful scene.

■ A troubled divorced woman (Terrazas) tries to explain to her genteel, patrician father (Caston) over late afternoon cocktails why she needs to move back home. She blurts out details he can't bear to hear. A beautifully nuanced scene.

■ A badly repressed father (Gill) haltingly announces to his incredulous wife (Williams) and children why he must go to a stuffy men's club to confront a bully twice his size who has impugned his brother's sexual orientation.

The low-key humor of the scene is counterpointed with repeated entrances and exits by a tureen-toting Teutonic kitchen maid (Terrazas) with the mannerisms of a Neo-Nazi poster girl.

Finally, in a beautifully under-played scene, a proud, ailing father (Caston) outlines to his awed son (Farmanesh) the minute details for his impending funeral. Played in subdued light at far down left-stage, the scene was a subtle mixture of self-revelatory pride and weakness mixed with genuine pathos. Absolutely riveting.

Mark Shilstone-Laurent directs (and also performs with wife Adrienne Laurent in Gurney's Love Letters, staging in tandem with this play, through Feb. 18).

The Dining Room's scenic and lighting design is done ably by Kevin Cain. Jennifer Muniz is credited as stage manager and properties are by Anne Scanlon. The excellent light board operation is by Regina Pak and Nok Lam.

James P. Kinney is a freelance theater critic and Monterey Peninsula resident.

Hoffman Mint uses expert artists, newest equipment to ensure quality products

nation's majestic animals in our artwork," Hoffman said, "and we thought a calendar medal would be a natural."

The image of the cougar, rendered by artist and sculptor James A. Payette, "will remind people throughout the year of the plight of this magnificent animal."

Hoffman said that he was inspired in part by calendar medals that were popular from the mid-1700s to the mid 1800s, when they were the size of silver dollars and provided a way for the general populace to follow the newly implemented Gregorian calendar. When paper calendars became easier and less expensive to produce, they eventually replaced the calendar medal, he said.

Diverse customers

The Hoffman Mint uses the same kind of automatic coining press that the United States Mint uses. The machines can churn out small coins or tokens, which make up the bulk of the company's business, at the rate of 15,000 pieces an hour.

> There are a lot of uses for coins. People may throw away mugs and buttons or other souvenirs, but no one ever throws away a coin or token.
> — Michael Hoffman

The mint has customers in every state and in 24 foreign countries, and those customers include retail chains, military regiments, last year's Super Bowl, the Pittsburgh Pirates, governors of two states, and the Walt Disney Company, for which the Hoffman Mint struck The Lion King medals last year. It also struck medals for the Ford Motor Company commemorating the 30th anniversary of the Mustang and the 40th anniversary of the Thunderbird.

"There are a lot of uses for coins," Hoffman said. "People may throw away mugs and buttons or other souvenirs, but no one ever throws away a coin or token."

Companies often choose to give away medals or coins when they want to commemorate a special event or anniversary, such as a centennial. Families, also, have asked for medals to mark long-term wedding anniversaries, reunions and other events.

Medals and coins can be struck in both high relief and low relief, and the high-relief medals are "like a little work of art," Hoffman said. His medals bear the official Hoffman Mint trademark, and Hoffman's goals is to make the public aware of the availability and collectability of medals and coins.

The Presidential Inaugural Medal

In addition to families and businesses, The Hoffman Mint's customers now include the President of the United States. The mint thoroughly and aggressively pursued the commission for the Presidential Inaugural Medal, and it paid off.

"We did more than anybody else. We submitted a sample medal to the governor's mansion in Arkansas," while the four other mints who bid on the job submitted only sketches of their proposed medals.

"Bill and Hillary picked it out personally, and we were asked to make it based on the artistic and manufacturing ability," Hoffman said.

Three solid gold Clinton Inaugural Medals were made — one for the President, presented to him personally by Hoffman; one for the Smithsonian, to which the dies were also donated; and one for the Inaugural Committee. The rest, made in five sizes, were of bronze or brass alloys.

"You always want to pick the right artist," Hoffman said of the people who do the actual artwork for the medals. "We commission high-quality sculptors to do the work for us, but they can be anywhere in the world."

In the minting process, the clay sculptures are reduced onto smaller pieces called engraved dies, which are used to make the medals. The array of equipment used to complete this process in Hoffman's plant is impressive.

Plant Manager Tom Boyle explained that the Hoffman Mint makes its own "tooling," or the pieces that actually cut out the metal. "We can make tools to within two-ten thousandths of an inch, which is 10 times finer than human hair," Boyle said.

The care and precision taken by the craftspeople connected with the Hoffman Mint shows in the number of letters from satisfied clients that Hoffman displays proudly. The one from the Inaugural Medals Committee in the nation's capital indicates that sales of the Clinton medal "exceeded recent inaugural medal sales by a substantial margin."

A growing company

The Hoffman Mint is currently undergoing growth, Hoffman said, as it is doing more exporting. Hoffman hopes to expand his Monterey staff by adding another machine operator and marketing personnel.

"We're getting our share of the export business, and because of our competitive prices, we're able to ship to Hong Kong," Hoffman said, which opens up his prospects on the Pacific Rim considerably.

More information about the Hoffman Mint and its products may be obtained by calling (800) 227-5813 or by writing to P.O. Box 896, Carmel, 93921.

minutes) and cooled a batch of artichokes for her nine dinner guests. Then removing the inner leaves and the fuzzy choke, she stuffed the centers with crab salad. I wish I had been there!

As we all live in the vicinity of the wonderful, everlasting Odello artichoke fields I trust you all know how to steam artichokes and serve them accompanied by your own razzle-dazzle sauce. So instead I offer three quick artichoke dips to be served with chips, crackers, french or pita bread.

Jean Harris' Artichoke Dip

1 14-ounce jar marinated artichoke hearts, drained and chopped
1 4-ounce can chopped Ortega chiles
1 cup grated jack cheese
1 cup grated parmesan cheese
1 cup mayonnaise
Tabasco sauce to taste

Combine ingredients and bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes, or zap in microwave for about three minutes on high (or until bubbly).

Artichoke Salsa

(courtesy of From Scratch restaurant)

1/2 cup marinated artichoke hearts, diced
1/2 cup diced tomatoes
1/4 cup finely diced red onion
1 tablespoon chopped cilantro
1 tablespoon balsamic vinegar
1 teaspoon salt

Combine all ingredients and chill before serving.

Artichoke Hummus

1 13 and 3/4-ounce can artichoke hearts, drained
1 15-ounce can chick peas, drained, juice reserved
6 sun-dried tomatoes
juice of one lemon
1 clove garlic
1 tablespoon olive oil
1 teaspoon salt
Fresh ground pepper to taste

Puree chick peas, artichoke hearts, garlic, salt and pepper in olive oil and lemon juice, adding a bit of the artichoke juice if necessary. Add tomatoes and whirl just enough for a coarse grind. Serve at room temperature.

CD REVIEWS/R. Iskandar Soekardi

MOJAVE 3
ask me tomorrow
4AD label

AS THE principal songwriter and frontman of Slowdive, Neil Halstead found a niche in dream pop ventures, borrowing moods of The Cure and Cocteau Twins and attracting the attention of Brian Eno, who helped Slowdive create their best atmospheric work on the album Souvlaki.

But to avoid stagnation, Halstead left Slowdive with bandmate Rachel Goswell to form Mojave 3 and to join the latest wave of stripped-down artists on the 4AD label.

On first listen, Mojave 3 sounds a lot like the groups Mazzy Star and Tarnation. They stroll through melancholy and loneliness with delicate guitar strumming and drum brushing accompanying Goswell and Halstead's charming, breathy intonations.

But the strengths of ask me tomorrow are on "You're Beautiful," "After All" and "Tomorrow's Taken," folk-like songs with shades of Nick Drake, backed by Audrey Riley on cello. They match the best of the recent 4AD acoustic inclination by Red House Painters, Heidi Berry and This Mortal Coil. Riley, and Christopher Andrew on piano, create tender emotional spaces for Halstead.

Lyrically, Halstead's scenarios could be more complex or probing, but his words feel sincere nonetheless, as hopes are revealed through his own advice on "After All":

"Show a smile if you're lonely, don't break your heart. . .after all, we're only looking for a light / just someone to hold us close. . .something to make it right."

Mojave 3 has sighed a promising new beginning.

VARIOUS ARTISTS
The World Sings Goodnight 2
Silver Wave label
Help
London label

SO FEW compilations of recent times have had any cohesion or impact that it's a relief to hear The World Sings Goodnight 2 and Help, two benefit albums promoting global awareness.

The former is the follow-up to the 1994 smash world music record, featuring lullabies from around the world, while the latter is a pop-rock assemblage produced solely to assist war-torn areas of Bosnia.

Tom Wasinger's The World Sings Goodnight 2 is a soothing and peaceful album featuring native tongue lullabies from several foreign countries including Sudan, France and Japan, as well as American melodies from Shaker, Cajun French and Cheyenne Indian regions.

A Lebanese supplication for a child is heartwarming, while Nepalese and Vietnamese voices conjure up ethereal fields. The range of emotions is vast: a Tahitian woman sings of a dying mother cat sighing to her kitten in a song that precedes an Indian mother calling her child "a pot belly."

A Balinese suling flute, a Malian harp-like kora, and a German lute are a few of the many folk instruments featured on the disc. Wasinger's production avoids new age tinkering, common to lullaby albums, in order to keep the songs authentic.

Equally credible to Wasinger's strong promotion of world music is the fact that proceeds benefit Save the Children. Funds from the '94 album help Amnesty International.

Although Help is primarily pop-rock oriented, the album is also a kind of "world music." Late last year, many of the hottest musicians in Britain, from Oasis to Neneh Cherry, entered studios throughout Europe to help raise money for the children in the former Yugoslavia. With alarming and insightful liner notes by former Nirvana bassist Krist Novoselic, the disc's offerings recall the passion of the '80s anti-apartheid record Sun City.

Manic Street Preachers' cover of "Raindrops Keep Falling on My Head" puts a twist on the Bacharach tune as James Dean Bradfield's anguished wail of "because I'm free" turns simple lyrics into a poignant message for the cause.

Terry Hall and Salad's cover of "Dream a Little Dream" is weaker than last year's rendition by Beautiful South, but as in the rest of the album, the song choices, old and new, are near perfect for the pop genre. The disc flows nicely and never strays from the idealistic message of peace.

Other key tracks include The One World Orchestra's mocking "The Magnificent," setting the cowboy anthem to Serbian radio messages and shelling, and Stereo MCs' "Sweetest Truth," providing optimistic beats.

The WARCHILD organization will utilize funds from the disc to help children of all races in Bosnia.

Clearly, both albums succeed by finding unity in rhythm and understanding the need for charity and education to foster peace. Rest and revisualize.

Monterey Peninsula resident R. Iskandar Soekardi is host of "A Fezful of Possibilities," a world beat/ambient rock radio show that airs from 10 p.m. to midnight Fridays on KAZU 90.3 FM.

MUSIC NOTES

Symphony performs with Danish soprano Elisabeth Meyer-Topsøe in concerts this week

DANISH SOPRANO Elisabeth Meyer-Topsøe will make her American debut with Clark Suttle and the Monterey County Symphony at 3 p.m. Sunday and at 8 p.m. Monday in Sunset Theater, San Carlos at Ninth, Carmel.

Meyer-Topsøe

Meyer-Topsøe was educated at the Royal Opera School in Stockholm, Sweden. She received the Birgit Nilsson Music Prize in 1989, the Danish Music Critic's Prize in 1991 and the Elisabeth Dons Prize from The Royal Theater in Copenhagen in 1993.

The concert will feature Haydn's Symphony No.104 in D major, "London" and two works by Richard Strauss, Till Eulenspiegel's Merry Pranks and Four Last Songs.

Tickets are $32, $25 and $13 for Sunday's concert; and $32, $27 and $18 for Monday's concert.

An additional concert is slated for 8 p.m. Tuesday at Sherwood Hall, 940 N. Main St., Salinas.

Tickets/more information: 624-8511.

Fund-raiser for Diabetic Youth Foundation will feature live classical guitar music

"PUTTIN' ON the Ritz," a gala event benefiting the Diabetic Youth Foundation, is slated from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 25 at the Monterey Marriott, 350 Calle Principal, Monterey.

The event begins with mimosas, live classical guitar music, hors d'oeuvres and a silent auction and continues with brunch and a live auction including art, jewelry and a cruise for two on Norwegian Cruise Line.

Admission is $45 per person, and proceeds will be used to send needy children with insulin-dependent diabetes to camp.

More information/reservations: 754-5230 or 722-6909.

Wells Fargo Bank provides grant for students to attend Carmel Music Society concerts

WELLS FARGO Bank is sponsoring 120 free tickets for Monterey County students of music to attend the Carmel Music Society regular season series of concerts.

Tickets are underwritten for students of piano, vocal or instrumental music by a $3,000 grant from Wells Fargo Bank.

Tickets are distributed free of charge to young people, ages 12 through 18, through music teachers in both public and private schools.

The Carmel Music Society presents classical music artists of international renown in concert here on the Monterey Peninsula. Among the musicians the society has brought here to perform are Midori, Emanuel Ax, Vladimir Horowitz, Rudolf Serkin, Leontyne Price and Itzhak Perlman.

More information: 625-9938.

Zimbabwean dance, song troupe Black Umfolosi set to perform in Carmel Feb. 24

AFRICAN VOCALISTS Black Umfolosi, Zimbabwe's answer to Ladysmith Black Mambazo, will perform the latest Peformance Carmel show at 8 p.m. Saturday at Sunset Theater, San Carlos at Ninth, Carmel.

Black Umfolosi is an eight-man close-harmony ensemble performing a mix of traditional Zulu war dances and a capella imbube songs from South Africa. Since they first came to international recognition with their 1990 album Unity, the group has been on a constant, sellout world tour.

The name of the group comes from a river, one of two that flow through the Kwazulu region of South Africa: the White and the Black Umfolosi.

Tickets are $12.50 and $16, available at the center's office from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays.

More information: 624-3996.

ON ANGEL WINGS

Artist Wendy Angel stands beside her painting 'Hal Golan' in Knesset, Jerusalem. The painting is now on exhibit at Congregation Beth Israel.

Globe-trotting local artist is probably not home for long

By SUE BARTON

WENDY ANGEL is a local girl who's really going places. All the time.

Angel has lived and painted in New York, Europe, Hawaii, British Columbia, the San Francisco Bay Area and, most recently, Israel.

The painter currently has an exhibition, "Images of Israel," hanging at Congregation Beth Israel in Carmel. The show contains 16 abstract works in oil completed during Angel's 1994-95 stint as an artist-in-residence of the Arad Arts Project in Arad, Israel, a small city of the Northern Negev Desert, above the Dead Sea.

The Arad Arts Project is a six-month residency that enables foreign artists of any medium to live and work in Arad, to participate in seminars with Israeli artists and to audit courses in Jewish and Israeli subjects. Most importantly, participants are allowed plenty of time and space to work independently.

Angel's paintings of a conflicted landscape evoke Israel with integrity. Upon viewing her work, one feels she has absorbed the place through her very pores, translating its mystery in a way that is heartfelt yet unsentimental. Gentle, but with teeth.

Arad's influence

Arad is a city full of trees and flowers (due to irrigation), but a walk out of town in any direction leads to the vast, tranquil desert. This otherworldly place, in combination with political happenings there, could not help but profoundly influence Angel.

"The work I accomplished there was informed by the atmosphere of the high desert," Angel says. "The zig-zag of the African/Syrian rift also entered my compositions, and the environments I created emerged from the relationship between what I saw, thought and felt, and the medium of paint."

Angel has worked in several other media, including printmaking, collage, clay, textiles and mixed-media. A few years ago, she even "appropriated some of the ideas of the Laban Movement Analysis from the field of dance," she says. "The interrelationship of my conscious, subconscious, eyes, muscles, nerves and the materials I use deepened my appreciation of the content of abstraction."

Born and raised on the Monterey Peninsula, Angel graduated from Carmel High School in 1978, attended Monterey Peninsula College and received her bachelor's degree from the University of California at Santa Cruz, where she also completed a postgraduate certificate in fine art.

Currently, Angel is staying in Carmel Highlands with her family until she decides where her work will take her next.

Santa Catalina features Rosario Mazzeo's photos

"SACRED PLACES: Creations of Man and Nature," an exhibition of photographs by Rosario Mazzeo, hangs in the Santa Catalina School Gallery beginning with a reception from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

One of the first people who bought Mazzeo's early work was Ansel Adams. Later, Mazzeo would study with Adams and Edward Weston and help found the Friends of Photography group with Adams and Brett Weston.

Mazzeo, also an accomplished classical musician, has photographed on every continent except Antarctica and has files containing more than 14,000 negatives and proof prints.

Santa Catalina School is located on Mark Thomas Drive in Monterey. The gallery, in the foyer of the school's library, is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekends.

The exhibit continues through April 19. More information: 655-9350.

Carmel Art Guild sets show, sale

THE EIGHTH annual "Whale of an Art Show," the Carmel Art Guild's multimedia show and sale, will be held from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday in Custom House Plaza in Monterey. Admission is free.

Featured are fine art, crafts, jewelry and clothing made of clay, wood, fiber, and paper. Watercolors, oils and photography are also presented, and participating artists will be on hand to discuss their work.

GIANNI'S
Scores with 'fresh approach'

GIANNI'S PIZZA has been preparing the best homemade pizza in town for almost 21 years now, along with many other quality Italian meals at competitive prices.

Carl, Ginger and Christopher Costa have owned and operated Gianni's since 1974, using a straightforward approach that is a proven recipe for success.

Perhaps the goodness of Gianni's lies in the homemade pizza dough and sauce, made from scratch every day. A Gianni's pizza crust is rarely discarded because it's always fresh.

Or maybe it's the fresh mozzarella cheese, vegetables and meats that keep bringing Gianni's satisfied customers back for more. The Gianni's Special – loaded with cheese, pepperoni, onions, fresh mushrooms, black olives, bell peppers and Italian sausage – has been a proven favorite among lovers of the combination pizza.

Not everyone likes everything on it, but that is never a problem at Gianni's. Depending on your price range and appetite, you can create any number of combinations by adding to a basic cheese pizza : Canadian bacon and pineapple, pepperoni, Italian salami, Italian sausage, ground beef, fresh mushrooms, black olives, green bell peppers, onion, anchovies, tomato, liguica, shrimp, or even artichoke hearts or try some new gouret pizzas and calzones.

The super vegetarian special will satisfy those who prefer a meatless pizza, with fresh mushrooms, onions, green peppers and black olives, tomato and artichoke.

Ginger herself best summed up Gianni's secret, which is really no secret at all, just common sense.

"What you see is what you get," she said. "Everything is made fresh, from scratch. We buy only the top ingredients and we never use fillers. It's homemade, just like we make at home."

If pizza is not what you had in mind, Gianni's offers a myriad of other choices, all prepared with the same care and attention to detail.

Start with a tossed green salad or antipasto with pesto pasta, green and black olives, red bell peppers, carrots and red onions, marinated in a delicious vinaigrette.

Try a fresh pasta dish with marinara or alfredo and muchroom sauce and garlic bread, served with your choice of mostoccioli, spaghetti, fettucine or spinach fettucine. The fettucine alfredo with clams is a rich, creamy entree sure to satisfy the most discriminating palate. A meat sauce with meatballs or sausage (or both), spinach pesto, and Sicilian style clams round out the pasta selection. A generous portion of traditional homemade lasagna or cheese ravioli are other tempting possibilities.

Saunter up to the full cocktail bar and order a beer, wine cooler, glass of wine, soft drink, espresso or cappucino to go with your meal.

For lunch, open Friday, Saturday and Sunday at 11:30, try a hot meatball or Italian sausage sandwich with mozzarella cheese and rich tomato sauce. Cold deli-style sandwiches are also available, made with ham, salami, roast beef, cheese, and all the fixins', if you prefer.

No meal is complete without dessert. If you have room, try a slice of cheesecake, Chocolate Mousse or chocolate fudge cake. The gelatos are superior, particularly "chocolate decadence" and mocha almond fudge.

If you haven't already been to Gianni's Pizza, it's time to go. Gianni's authentic Italian atmosphere is informal and family-oriented. Its convenient location in New Monterey makes it a great place to include in your night on the town.

A large banquet room (seats 61) is available for large groups and all special occasions. Call for reservations.

Gianni's is located at 725 Lighthouse Avenue. Restaurant hours are 4 p.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Thursday; 11 :30 a.m. to 11 p.m.on Friday and Saturday; and 11:30 a.m. to 10 p.m. Sunday. To place an order to go (a popular option) call 649-1500.

The freshest ingredients and the varied menu of pizzas to hot meatball and Italian sausage sandwiches (as well as pasta dishes) keep Gianni's customers coming back for more.

People 1996 Entertainment Almanac is a trivia buff's dream

People magazine's almanac gives the lowdown on headline-makers Sandra Bullock, Hugh Grant, Princess Diana and so many more.

IF READING about last year's "juiciest scandals, hottest pairings and saddest splits" doesn't hold you in thrall, perhaps the biographies of 400 celebrities and reviews of 1,000 movies, music, books and TV shows will.

When I began perusing this compendium of pop culture trivia, the People 1996 Entertainment Almanac, I thought "Who cares about these trifling tidbits?" But then I became hooked after reading that Bruce Willis and Demi Moore were married by Little Richard and that the couple now have three daughters named Rumer Glenn, Scott Larue, and Tallula Belle.

Did you know,..

Did you know that Robin Williams studied at the Juilliard School of Music; that Sigourney Weaver attended Stanford and received her MFA from Yale; that Quentin Tarantino is a high school dropout?

1996 PEOPLE ENTERTAINMENT ALMANAC
By the editors of People magazine
Little, Brown and Co.
$10.95.

And hear this: Mel Gibson was born in Peekskill, N.Y., but his father moved the family to Australia when Mel was four years old so that his sons wouldn't be drafted. Whoopi Goldberg, whose birth name is Caryn Johnson, was once a bricklayer.

James Garner, who starred in The Rockford Files for several years and won an Emmy for "Best Actor in a Drama Series" as a result, is quoted as saying, "If you have any pride in your work, you don't go on TV."

For the royalty watchers among our readers, you won't want to miss the royalty section of this amazing almanac in which Buckingham Palace's latest gaffes are recounted, and the royal houses around the world are listed.

And if you gather with friends on Oscar night, by all means invest in this tome of trivia if only to settle heated arguments that might arise concerning who won an Oscar for what film in what category and in what year. The winners are all listed, chronologically and categorically.

Where else can one find these fascinating, albeit inconsequential, facts that are the signs of our times? There are more than 100 photos interspersed throughout this chubby 480 page paperback produced by the editors of People Weekly magazine. This is indeed the ultimate celebrity sourcebook.

Guidebook provides info on dog-friendly lodgings, parks for those traveling with Fido

IF YOU like to travel and have a dog that you just can't bear to leave behind with a doggie sitter, this book's for you!

Eileen Barish is a dog person who has happily traveled the length and breadth of California with her two Golden Retrievers, Max and Rosie. Doin' California with Your Pooch, the latest of her pet-friendly books, lists 1,500 lodgings, 450 outdoor adventures, 550 day hikes, plus training and travel tips, all geared toward dogs and their caring owners.

DOIN' CALIFORNIA WITH YOUR POOCH
By Eileen Barish
Pet Friendly Publications
Scottsdale, Ariz.

Barish takes readers through 450 California cities, alphabetically, from Adelanto to Yucca Valley, listing lodgings — from budget motels to luxury hotels — all with welcome mats out for Fido.

But wait! There's more! State beaches, parks, forests and lakes where dogs are welcome are represented, too, with all recreation areas graphically described, complete with easy-to-follow driving directions. This section is invaluable to traveling dog owners who want to make sure their best friend has enough recreation daily to make driving more pleasant for one and all.

Carmel-by-the-Sea is singled out as having a beach that is "a puppy paradise," as well as offering 10 lodgings that welcome dogs. Monterey is shown as having 14 pet-friendly hostelries and two parks.

Other chapters in the book include an introduction to vacationing with dogs, getting ready for the trip, what to pack, travel training, traveling by plane, travel safety tips, first aid emergency treatment, and hiking trail manners and methods. In addition, invaluable information is included (with thumbnail descriptions) about California's national forests and wilderness areas, as well as descriptions and locations of the birds and mammals of California's national forests.

There's also a city locator guide, with city maps of towns located in Northern, Sierra, Bay Area, Central, South Coast and South Inland areas.

This thoughtfully-written book is a true compendium of helpful, up-to-date information for people who travel with their dogs. Its 650 pages are liberally sprinkled with artist Gregg Myers' wacky, delightful cartoons of traveling dogs.

Doin' California with Your Pooch is available at most large bookstores. It can also be ordered directly from the publisher at P.O. Box 8459, Scottsdale, AZ 85252.

A portion of the sales revenue is donated by the author to branches of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (SPCA) and other humane societies.

Margot Pettit Nichols is a Carmel resident, freelance writer and former editor whose book reviews have appeared in the San Francisco Examiner. A published poet, she is currently writing a series of young adult mystery novels.

■ Red & White Ball draws colorful personalities

Even though the AT&T has come and gone, the flurry of Peninsula activities has not decreased — it has accelerated. A case in point would be the Fourth Annual Red & White Ball, one of the key fund-raising events for Meals on Wheels (MOW) of the Monterey Peninsula, held Saturday evening at Rancho Cañada in Carmel Valley.

Supporters, dressed to the nines in gorgeous red and white gowns and tuxedos, filled every square inch of the Fiesta Ballroom, where hundreds of items had been placed in anticipation of a grand silent auction.

The auction was sponsored by the Monterey Peninsula Sunrise Rotary Club, and proceeds benefited that club and MOW. Some of the items donated were kayak rentals, overnight stays at hotels, dinners, eye exams, private tours, acupuncture treatments, greens fees for four and airplane flying lessons. I won a bid for a cowgirl hat.

Glenn and Lavina Stinson of Pebble Beach were honored for their outstanding generosity and support to all of the MOW programs throughout the past year, and MOW President Kathryn Kandler asked President-elect Norm Pitts, Vice President Michael Albov and others to stand and take a bow in acknowledgement of their help. Committee members Morley Brown, Francesca Farr, Pat Miniaci and others were also applauded roundly for their talents in making the ball such a success.

Rancho Cañada owner Nick Lombardo should be complimented on the huge, delicious steaks and salmon served there. No one left hungry!

Standouts were Audrey Schrader in her sexy silver pants and Shane Fuller in an adorable gown with large red and white polka dots. But handsome Joe McCarthy, sitting at our table in a white tux with red bow tie and cummerbund, stole the show.

MOW provides affordable meals to 4,800 homebound and disabled persons and sponsors social programs for 2,600 senior citizens throughout the community. For more information about this wonderful group of people, call 375-4454.

■ LifeSavers save the day

A special benefit show and auction of original art done on palettes by more than 30 of the country's leading artists was held Friday at Big Horn Galleries in Carmel. The event benefited LifeSavers for Youth, and as usual, everyone was there. I spotted Shane and Stewart Fuller, Amy Funt and Greg Colletti among the crowd.

In support of this wonderful fund-raising effort, 12 area restaurants and four wineries provided delicious samples of their fine cuisines and wines. Droves of people were gathered around the many tables that were piled high with the succulent offerings.

The palette paintings featured exquisite daffodils, pussycats, beaches, owls and landscapes — a well-rounded assortment for anyone's taste. It was also rewarding to be able to view other paintings on exhibit in the gallery.

LifeSavers is a group of people dedicated to the goal of preventing suicide among young people through counseling, intervention and awareness programs in Monterey and San Benito counties.

Everyone is talking about the huge annual tent affair that LifeSavers holds in the summer. This year they will feature Willie Nelson — a hot ticket! Can't wait!

■ Marina Air Races — sans live pilots

When the City of Marina took over the Fort Ord airport facility recently, we never expected the city would put it to use so quickly!

Last Friday we took a short drive to the area, and, to our surprise, the sky was crowded with airplanes. We counted more than 10 low-flying racing planes circling the field. Upon closer inspection, we found that there wasn't a live pilot in any one of them. They were radio-controlled midget planes!

The event that ended Sunday was sponsored by the Marina Chamber of Commerce and The Race Marketing group of San Francisco, and $11,000 in prize money was distributed.

The planes, replicas of Texas trainers (AT 6) and Formula Ones, have a nine-foot wingspan and travel more than 150 miles per hour over a tight 1,200 foot course. Midget planes of this size were used in classic Hollywood films, such as Casablanca.

In the background during the last scene of Casablanca, the studio used a midget plane and two midget ground crew personnel. Many of these radio-controlled models are used in movie air battles. Can you imagine the filmmaker blowing one up at a cost of $5,000 per model?

Blowing up is just one (albeit the most extreme) of the hazards these hobbyists have to face. When the planes fly close together and pass each other for a lead position, accidents do happen.

If you missed these midget races, don't worry — the group is planning three more meets. Bring the family. But when you go, don't yell "Pilots! Man your planes!"

Marina's new fire department, K-Mart and post office should get together and ring a bell for their Chamber. The event was handled beautifully with hundreds of fans watching and joining in.

■ A Day of Romance in Old Monterey

This had to be one of the most charming "Firsts" in Monterey. Conceived by state park interpreter Dave Schaechtele, California State Parks on Saturday presented the love stories of four couples who lived in the Larkin House, Cooper-Molera Abode, Casa Soberanes and the Stevenson House.

Aside from the historic value, the short plays dealing with the actual lives of the inhabitants were very interesting.

For instance, did you know that the Larkins, being Protestants, had to be married at sea because the Spaniards had brought part of the Inquisition to these soils, and no one could be married anywhere in California unless they were staunch Catholics?

At the Cooper-Molera Adobe we were informed that John Rogers Cooper was renamed Juan Bautista Cooper before he could marry Encarnacion Bautista.

Robert Louis Stevenson, frail and penniless, came all the way from Scotland in 1879 to marry Fanny Osborne. After six months they left Monterey's Stevenson House for San Francisco, where, after Fanny's divorce, they married in 1880. They traveled all over the world, finally settling on a large plantation in Samoa. Stevenson died in 1894 and is buried in Samoa, and Fanny, who died in 1914, lies next to him.

This elegant offering ended at the Doubletree Hotel for a "High Tea" and poetry reading.

The large groups of people who attended are a testimony to what this type of event could lead to! Let's continue it, forever!

■ Wine and Will Bullas

The 1996 Monterey Wine Festival (MWF) doesn't begin until March 28, but that didn't stop local vintners and their guests from having a pre-festival poster party Thursday, Feb. 8 at New Masters Gallery in Carmel.

The beautiful poster, called "Beaujolais, Chardonnay and Monterey," depicts two Peninsula raccoons toasting each other with wine glasses. It was designed and painted by Carmel artist Will Bullas, who was on hand signing copies.

The festival has been billed as "The Original and Most Lavish Wine Event in the Country," and the 20th annual event will live up to that title. It'll feature a golf tournament, winery tours, a wine barrel tasting, a wine auction and luncheon, workshops, keynote speakers and cooking demonstrations.

This year's keynote speaker is Jerry Mead, the wine industry's most influential expert. Mead is also a writer on the subject of wines and the author of the longest running wine column in America, "Mead on Wine."

At the poster party, local wines were donated by Monterey Wine Country Associates, who also provided the delicious hors d'oeuvres. It was nice to see people I recognized from last year's festival.

Among the party-goers sampling wine and inspecting the paintings were: Ted Balestreri, Nick Lombardo, Jay and Delores Palmquist, Charles and Laura Schimmel, Carmel Mayor Ken White, Sam Teel, Bob Kramer, Don Boston, Alan Richmond, Monterey County Supervisor Edith Johnsen and Gloria and Jerry Edelen. Even Judge Gail Haddle came all the way from Newport, Ore. to be at the party. She was escorted by wine marketing director Gene Chavoya.

Information or reservations for the festival may be obtained by calling 656-WINE or (800) 656-4282.

WELCOME ABOARD!

New column focuses on local real estate industry

THIS IS the first installment of a regular column that will provide a "link" between our readers, the real estate community and our two newspapers — The Carmel Pine Cone and the brand new Monterey Times, which makes its debut this week.

Realtor Link

By Jeannette Menter

"Realtor Link" will provide a place to catch a glimpse of the people, events and issues that comprise the real estate industry.

If you have an item of note that should be included, I hope you'll let me know.

■ Newsworthy

John G. Fry, independent agent, has been awarded the Honorary For Life Membership for his numerous years as a Realtor ... Adorjani DeGalffy at Coldwell Banker has received the CRS (certified residential specialist) designation, a very lofty recognition ... Coldwell Banker / Fox & Carskadon in Carmel and Pacific Grove are joining more than 58,000 of the company's sales associates and employees from across North America as they celebrate the 90th anniversary of Coldwell Banker. Coldwell Banker boasts more than 2,400 residential real estate offices.

■ On the move

Noel Beutel has joined her son and owner / broker Scott Beutel at Ocean Avenue Realty in Carmel. Noel brings 16 years of marketing and contract negotiation experience to the firm. Contact her at 625-1343.

■ Shop talk

With change comes new opportunities.

For instance, with the introduction of the Monterey Times, we are making some changes in our classified advertising section. Within the next few weeks, we will begin accepting FREE classified listings of properties for sale, open houses, and the like. Please note that this bonus, however, is available only to our advertisers.

■ Bulletin board

Doug Lanzaro, of the Housing Authority of the County of Monterey, will conduct a "Home Buyers' Program Workshop" from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 24 at the Unity Church of Monterey. It's free (donations accepted), but space is limited. Call 372-0457 for reservations ... Agents, your affiliates are busily planning a St. Patrick's Day potluck party (it's really not that far off!) from 5 to 7 p.m. on Thursday, March 14. More details to follow ... Next membership meeting is Wednesday at the Monterey Elks Lodge.

If you have news for Realtor Link or desire information about advertising in The Pine Cone or Monterey Times, give Jeanette Menter a call at 624-0162.

How 'For-Sale-by-Owners' function in the information age

California Trends

By BRADLEY INMAN

ONE PROMISE of the information age is that the middle man will be cut out and consumers will save money by buying services and products more directly.

Already, investors using 800 numbers and on-line computer services, are sidestepping traditional stock brokers; travelers are booking trips directly with airlines and hotels; and insurance brokers are being shut out as consumers go right to the underwriter for coverage.

Of course, real estate is another industry seemingly threatened by this new and sophisticated self-reliant consumer who can market, list and sell their own homes, avoiding costly commissions.

That's what Mark and Marci Addison had in mind when they put their one-bedroom San Francisco condominium on the market in September of last year. And indeed within four months, they had sold their home for $209,500, but not by themselves.

When they couldn't sell it on their own, they contracted with San Francisco real estate agent Darwin Tejada of McGuire Real Estate and the house was in contract to be sold within 10 days.

"We didn't feel like we failed, we gave it our best shot, but it wasn't good enough so we called in professional help," said Mark Addison, a public relations executive who studied real estate when he earned his MBA at UCLA. Marci is a marketing executive with a worldwide computer publishing firm.

The Addisons epitomize the modern consumer — smart, educated, determined to get value for their money and distrustful of costly services that can't be justified.

When they first decided to sell on their own, their attitude about the real estate industry wasn't unfamiliar. "Face it, there are a lot of unprofessional Realtors out

TARGET MARKETING

As soon as the listing agreement is signed, your Realtor will begin the search for a buyer for your home. This means directing our marketing efforts to target groups of individuals who are likely to be attracted to the amenities offered by your home and neighborhood.

For instance, Carmel & Pebble Beach being widely known as vacation & retirement Meccas, the Realtor might look for prospects in the Bay area or the San Joaquin Valley. If it is an historic property, the local preservation society may have a publication in which to advertise. Realtors may call or write to the neighbors who may know someone who would be attracted to your home. Real estate agents will also contact other Realtors who have marketed similar properties and may have a backlog of buyers. When your home is being marketed professionally, your Realtor will do a lot more than just feed the listing into the MLS and place an occasional ad.

For solid advice on buying or selling Real Estate, consult us at 408-626-CRML (2765) or 800-700-5588.

there," said Mark Addison. "If all they do is put an ad in the newspaper and hold a home open on weekends, then what are you really paying for?"

Plus, he said "we believed in our own capacity and our understanding of business and marketing. We figured we could pay ourselves that money by selling the condo ourselves."

Initially, the Addisons made all of the right moves. They purchased two books on buying and selling homes and they scanned real estate ads for copy ideas.

"Just like the ads, we emphasized the architectural quality, the historic neighborhood and the qualities of this charming San Francisco community," said Mark.

The Addisons visited open houses and they did a comparative market analysis of what their home was worth. They are computer savvy and familiar with the Internet, so they explored the World Wide Web for ideas.

Then, they placed ads — at $60 a piece — in the open house listings of the Sunday San Francisco Examiner-Chronicle and they also paid Treasure Realty in Alameda a $275 fee to list their home in the appropriate Multiple Listing Services (MLS) to attract buyers.

They put the home on the market for $217,000, but had decided they would settle for as little as $205,000.

"We staged the house just like the experts recommend, hiding everything in the garage like the vacuum cleaner and dirty laundry bags," said Mark.

Then they held open houses from September through November. "We spent every Saturday cleaning the house and every Sunday at the open house, and we were spending a lot of money on newspaper ads."

"We got a lot of 'looky lous', but we couldn't close," said Mark Addison.

In December, they made an offer on a new home in Marin County and were anxious to sell. Tejada had come to an open house at the Addison condo and had been offering them free advice. Then, he came to them with a detailed marketing plan and asked for the listing. They settled on a 5 percent commission.

"We said go for it and within 10 days we had a signed contract for $209,500, and the builder of our new home paid the commission to Tejada," said Mark.

The Addisons realize now that they didn't have the time to market the property properly and didn't have real access to the broker community that ultimately opened the home up to a wider market, including the overseas buyer who purchased the unit. Moreover, they had it on the market at the wrong time and were pressured to sell it fast by their offer on the new house.

TRENDS

Nevertheless, they have figured out what Realtors do that can make them worth their commission.

"You can't just put an ad in the paper and expect someone to come by and purchase your home. You need a salesman, someone who will go out and sell your house and close the deal," said Mark. "That's what a good Realtor does."

Supplemental property taxes inaugurated to benefit schools

SUPPLEMENTAL REAL property taxes have been with us since July 1983, but you may not know what they are, what they do and how they affect you and your property. Here are answers to some commonly asked questions.

Q: When did this tax come into effect?

A: The Supplemental Real Property Tax Law was signed in July 1983 and is part of a drive to aid California's schools. This property tax revision is expected to produce over $300 million per year in revenue for schools.

Q: How will Supplemental Property Taxes affect me?

A: If you don't plan on buying new property or undertaking new construction, this new tax will not affect you at all. But, if you do wish to do either of the two, you will be required to pay a supplemental property tax which will become a lien against your property as of the date of ownership change or the date of completion of new construction.

Q: When and how will I be billed?

A: "When" is not easy to predict. You could be billed in as few as three weeks, or it could take more than six months.

"When" will depend on the individual county and the workload of the County Assessor, the County Controller/Auditor and the County Tax Collector. The assessor will appraise your property and advise you of the new supplemental assessment amount.

At that time you will have the opportunity to discuss your valuation, apply a Homeowner's Exemption and be informed of your right to file an Assessment Appeal. The County will then calculate the amount of the supplemental tax and the tax collector will mail you a supplemental tax bill. The supplemental tax bill will identify, among other things, the following information: the amount of the supplemental tax and the date on which the taxes will become delinquent.

Q: Can I pay my Supplemental Tax Bill in installments?

A: All supplemental taxes on the secured roll are payable in two equal installments. The taxes are due on the date the bill is mailed and are delinquent on specified dates depending on the month the bill is mailed as follows:

1. If the bill is mailed within the months of July through October, the first installment shall become delinquent on Dec. 10 of the same year. The second installment shall become delinquent on April 10 of the next year.

2. If the bill is mailed within the months of November through June, the first installment shall become delinquent on the last day of the month following the month in which the bill is mailed. The second installment shall become delinquent on the last day of the fourth calendar month following the date the first installment is delinquent.
